Coan's Skull Fractured as Nats Lose Two

Mele, Weik, Grasso Also Injured in Night Games

Browns Slam Ball, To Win 10-5, 9-3; Gil Lost to Club For at Least Month

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The bottom fell out for the Nats last night.

They lost a double-header to the last place St. Louis Browns, 10-5, and 9-3, but that's only the beginning of their troubles.

In order of their occurrence and importance, here's what else happened on the blackest Friday at Griffith Stadium in years:

1. Gil Coan suffered a fractured skull in the first game and will be out for at least a month.
2. Sam Mele, their leading hitter, pulled a groin muscle again in the first game and was unable to play in the nightcap.
3. Dick Weik was hit on the leg by a fierce line drive in the second game and had to be helped off the field.
4. Catcher Mickey Grasso was struck on the Adam's Apple by a foul tip and also had to leave the game.

Coan, who is in Georgetown Hospital, was injured in the seventh inning of the first game when he slid into second base trying to break up a double play.

He struck his head against Owen Friend's knee and was knocked unconscious. He was taken off the field in a stretcher to the Nats' clubhouse, where he regained consciousness and later was taken to the hospital.

X-rays were taken and Dr. George A. Resta, Nats' team physician, announced the young outfielder had a definite fracture and would be sidelined at least a month.

The injuries to Mele, Weik and Grasso are not believed serious.

Hudson Pounded

To add to Manager Bucky Harris' grief, his leading pitcher, Sid Hudson, was abused unashamedly in the first game. Instead of becoming the first American League pitcher to win seven games this season, Hudson got his third licking last night.

Sam Dente made a two-base error on a throw to first in the opening inning. The Browns seized the opportunity to unload a four-run salvo against Hudson, taking a lead they increased as the game wore on. The Brownies assaulted Hudson and his two successors for 12 hits, including a perfect five for five by first baseman Hank Arft.

The Nats could manage only eight against Al Widmar, who was removed in the seventh, and Cliff Fannin, who put down an insipid

Tito Hits Polish 'Insults' In Recalling Envoy

London, June 2 (AP).—Yugoslavia has recalled its Ambassador to Warsaw because of the Polish Government's "insulting and discriminatory conduct" toward him, Tanjug annouced tonight.

The official Yugoslav news agency, in a broadcast heard here, said the Yugoslav Embassy in Warsaw will remain open, headed by a charge d'affaires. It did not say when Rade Pribicevic, the Ambassador, was recalled or whether he has left Poland.

Excise Cuts of $536 Millions Clinched by Committee Vote

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Ways and Means Committee yesterday clinched into the 1950 tax bill some 536 million dollars of excise tax cuts as final voting started on more than a billion dollars in "tentative" reductions approved earlier.

With only minor changes, the committee finally confirmed tax cuts on theater admissions, luggage, jewelry, furs, toiletries, plug and twist tobaccco, and economy brand cigarettes.

On night clubs and cabarets, however, the House unit decided it had cut too deeply in halving the present 20 percent tax. It voted finally to make the levy 15 percent, recouping about 10 million dollars in estimated lost revenue.

Two other completely new tax cuts partially offset this saving:

1. Snuff users were voted the same tax break previously given tobacco chewers. The snuff rate was cut from 18 cents per pound to 8 cents per pound, at an estimated four-million-dollar loss to the Treasury.

2. All clocks retailing for less than $5 were voted a complete tax exemption. Previously only cheap alarm clocks were exempted. This change costs the Government only one million dollars.

A net paper pick-up of five million dollars thus resulted from the day's action but the committee has only started to review the long list of tentative excise reductions.

The sharpest contest of the day is said to have developed around an effort by Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.) to reverse an earlier close decision giving a tax differential to economy brand cigarettes (brands selling at not more than 12 cents a pack.)

Although the vote was not announced, Doughton is reported to have lost his fight to tax standard and economy brand cigarettes alike at the present 7-cents-a-pack rate, by the same one-vote margin he lost the initial contest.

The reaffirmed decision cuts the

Richitt Trial Won't Be Held, Barrett Hints

By Jean Reiff
Post Reporter

Police Chief Robert J. Barrett yesterday hinted he will not be perturbed if his 12 inspectors decide there should be no Police Trial Board action against Capt. Anthony Richitt.

He said he will confer with the inspectors early next week and that he will abide by their decision on what action seems best for the department. He said:

"I don't know if trial board action is the best thing. The morale of the department is good. I don't want to do anything to hurt it."

Barrett said he has not yet seen the report, prepared by Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, that says evidence supports charges against Richitt of insubordination, neglect of duty, and being absent without leave.

The police chief said he has heard about its contents but he wants to study it thoroughly before talking with the inspectors. He added he particularly wants to confer about it with Inspectors Clarence Lutz, William Cunningham, John H. Jefferies and Arthur E. Miller, who were involved in the Richitt affair.

"I don't want blood. And I'm not prejudiced. I'm willing to listen to the advice of others," Barrett declared. He added there is a possibility they may decide the whole thing should be dropped.

Sen. Vandenberg Back at Work

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), apparently recovered from two major operations, was back at work with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday after months of absence.

He sat at his familiar table in the Caucus Room while Secretary Acheson testified on the military aid program. He looked stronger, ruddier and more relaxed than when he made a brief appearance on the Senate floor three weeks ago.

Senators, State Department officials and reporters paraded to the committee table to pump his hand and tell him they were glad to have him back. Secretary Acheson walked around the committee table to greet him, said it was a happy day for everyone, and cautioned him to "take it easy now."

Water Loan and East Capitol St. Bridge Bills Signed by Truman

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday signed the bills for expanding the District water supply system and bridging the Anacostia River at East Capitol st.

The water bill authorizes Congress to lend the District up to 23 million dollars in Federal funds during the next 10 years to help finance a 62-million-dollar expansion of the supply system. What the District borrows in the next decade would be repaid in the following two decades.

The Commissioners are slated to act next week to carry out both new laws. The first step is expected Monday, when they probably will forward to the Capitol their requests for Senate changes in the House-passed District appropriation bill for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The requested funds will include the first water loan and money to start the bridge, officials predicted. The requests are to be submitted to the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee headed by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.). Besides the water and bridge funds, officials predicted the Commissioners will ask restoration of most of the fund reductions made by the House.

U. S. Agencies Will Tighten Heat Leaves

By Jerry Kluttz

The temperature of Federal workers will shoot up when they read this—Uncle Sam's proposed new hot weather policy.

It has been the policy for many years to excuse employes for the remainder of the day, usually in the early afternoon when a combination of temperature and humidity reached a certain high point.

But as the summer of 1950 is about to start, the Federal employe leave system is being attacked on Capitol Hill and elsewhere as "too liberal."

Attempts are being made in Congress to cut and restrict the use of annual leave. So, officials in the executive agencies have concluded a new hot-weather policy was in order.

They met yesterday in a two-hour meeting. No final decision was reached, but a majority of those present were agreed that a charge should be made against either anual or sick leave of employes when their offices are closed down because of the heat. They would release employes without charge to leave only on those rare occasions of "extreme" heat, such as when the temperature breaks 100 degrees.

Rent Control Until Dec. 31 Is Advanced

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

A compromise measure extending Federal rent control from June 30 to December 31, plus a "local option" feature for another six-month period, was approved yesterday by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

The measure, drafted by Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee, will not affect areas already decontrolled by State or other action. It will affect some eight million dwelling units, whose rents are still fixed.

The "local option" feature will permit some individual cities to vote to extend controls six months beyond December 31, but three of the Democrats voting for the measure reserved the right to oppose this provision on the floor.

Chairman Burnet R. Maybank, (D.. S. C.) said he has some doubts whether this section is constitutional.

Committee for Extension

The committee voted 8 to 5 for the rent control extension. Voting for it were Senators Maybank, John Sparkman (D., Ala.), J. Allen Frear (D., Del.), Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), William Fulbright (D., Ark.), Glen Taylor (D., Idaho), Russell Long (D., Ala.) and Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.)

Voting against it were Senators Charles Tobey (R., N. H.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.), John Bricker (R., Ohio) and Willis Robertson (D., Va.).

On motion of Douglas, all hotel accommodations would be decontrolled, an amendment to the House version. In effect, this would affect only hotels in Chicago, since New York hotels are now covered under the New York State law, and Federal hotel rent controls applied only to New York and Chicago.

The measure still has to face a stiff fight in both House and Senate. The House is scheduled to take it up a week from Monday and the Senate is expected to act before the June 30 deadline. Democratic leaders believe the bill will squeak through by a narrow margin but its opponents are also optimistic.

President Truman had demanded a flat one-year extension of the present law but was reported after a conference with Spence to be willing to accept this bill as the best compromise he could obtain.

The measure will permit big cities to decontrol their own rents in the six months from June 30 to December 31 by waiving a provision in the present law requiring that such action have the approval of State Governors.

All Must Do Their Part

Acheson Warns It May Cost More in 1951 to Block Russia

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Secretary Acheson gave the country its first official warning yesterday that it might have to spend more next year than this year for the defense of the non-Soviet world.

He did not estimate how much more might be needed, either for military aid to other countries or for the American defense budget, or for both. One of his assistants explained afterwards that the Secretary had no thought of "astronomical" new expenditures.

Still, the Secretary indicated plainly enough that he did not think military aid to western Europe could be kept at its present rate of a billion dollars a year. He was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, asking them to approve without "any loss of time" a request for $1,222,500,000 for military aid abroad.

The new program includes a billion dollars—the same amount as last year—for the western European nations that signed the North Atlantic treaty.

"Is it your estimate," asked Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) "that that will be a continuing call on us to maintain this collective security program? Or are we looking to the time when that will be gradually lowered?"

"Well, we are, of course, looking forward to a time when it would be lowered," Acheson answered, choosing his words carefully. "But I do not think, Senator, that anybody could honestly tell you that in the immediate future it would be lowered.

"In fact, I think the most honest answer would be that in the immediate future it might be increased.

"The effort we are going to have to make here and abroad is going to be very considerable. We are a long way from having an adequate security force for the North Atlantic treaty area.

"And I think all the members of the treaty, including the United States, have got to face the fact that unless there is a very considerable change in the international climate and in the actions of certain other powers, we may have to put more rather than less effort into the defense field."

This bore out the prediction by a high Administration official, made to reporters May 18 while Acheson was still in London, that American defense expenditures would have to go up as a result of the decision to create "balanced collective forces" in the North Atlantic.

Under this decision, written in principle into the present Mutual Defense Assistance Act, none of the treaty nations would try to be

Favors Atlantic Union

Russians to Control S. E. Asia; Aid Useless, Clayton Asserts

Former Undersecretary of State Will Clayton predicted yesterday the Russians will dominate southeast Asia within two years and urged an Atlantic union to offset such Communist advances.

He made the statement to reporters before discussing the proposed federation of North Atlantic democracies with President Truman. Afterward he said the union plan is "gaining converts every day," but he refused to disclose Mr. Truman's attitude toward it.

Clayton asserted the United States will be pouring "money down the drain" if it gives further aid to southeastern Asia because Russia soon will completely dominate the area—including Formosa and Indo-China, but excepting India, Pakistan, Japan and the Phillippines.

The cold war is basically an economic struggle, he said, which eventually will "compel western Europe to turn either to the Soviet empire or to the United States."

The Clayton-Truman meeting came as other delegates to a two-day Atlantic Union committee session buttonholed Congressmen. They sought support for congressional resolutions calling for an international conference to discuss federation.

Clayton, vice president of the Atlantic Union Committee, Inc., and Atomic Physicist Dr. Harold C. Urey, a member of the committee's board of governors, later addrssed a dinner which would up the meeting.

Clayton said the Western powers are not fighting the cold war "intelligently," and that Stalin, by a series of bold, aggressive strokes" . . . is winning."

"It should be apparent by now that the only way out of the mess into which we are heading is complete political and economic integration of the free world," he said.

Urey told the unionists the only practicable solution to the economic, military and political problems of the Western democracies lies in federation.

He said a "supergovernment" with "real authority to make de-

Court Refuses To Break Up ALCOA Empire

New York, June 2 (AP).—Federal Judge John C. Knox refused today to order a breakup of the Aluminum Company of America (ALCOA) industrial empire.

Ruling in an antitrust proceeding started by the Government 13 years ago, Knox did, however, give the Justice Department five more years to renew some phases of its petition.

He also ordered several actions which he said would sharpen competition in the aluminum industry.

ALCOA filed a counter-petition asking that it be freed of a monopoly classification given it in 1940.

Judge Knox denied this petition today.

The judge directed that stockholders in ALCOA and in Alumninum, Ltd., a Canadian company, dispose of their holdings in one or the other.

He said Arthur E. and Edward Davis, Roy A. Hunt and six members of the Mellon family hold 46.43 percent of the outstanding common stock of ALCOA and 44.65 percent of the Canadian firm's shares.

He also ordered in his 180-page decision the elimination of "grant back" provisions in royalty-free licenses issued by ALCOA to its two principal competitors. They are Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp., a Henry J. Kaiser organization, and the Reynolds Aluminum Co.

In the Role of Solomon

Court Denies Twin to Mother Who 'Sold' Child for $3000

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Judge Edward A. Tamm yesterday refused to give custody of a 7-year-old twin girl to her mother who he said "sold" the child for $3000 and is undeserving of the term, "Mother".

By his action, the District Court jurist ordered the adoption of the child, Joyce Nicely, by Mr. and Mrs. John E. Becker, an elderly couple residing at 720 E st. ne.

The decision was written with humility by Judge Tamm who said that although "equipped with limited mortal powers," he is called upon to "exercise the proverbial wisdom of Solomon."

He said only "Almighty God" could definitely decide the case correctly.

The decision ordering the adoption was made in the face of an adverse recommendation by the Board of Public Welfare and by the guardian appointed for the child for the case.

The judge began his opinion by saying the "innocent child" had a wide-eyed interest in the courtroom proceedings, "interrupted periodically by an appreciative lick of a lollypop of the 'all-day' variety, and her unconcealed interest in the behavior of her identical twin."

The case was taken to court

U.S. Develops Atomic Shell And Warhead For Missiles

By Max Boyd
Associated Press Reporter

Atomic artillery shells and atomic warheads on guided missiles have been developed by the United States.

These advancements, which might revolutionize warfare and defense to a degree second only to the influence of the original atomic bomb, became known yesterday.

They gave military planners of the Atlantic Pact countries new confidence that western Europe can be made secure against Russia's huge army and air force without bankrupting the United States and its Allies.

Military planners do not expect the new atomic weapons to be a substitute for strengthening ground armies and tactical air forces in western Europe, nor for a stronger United States Air Force and Navy. They explain that atomic weapons would not be effective against an attacking army unless strong defending ground and air power was present to force the aggressors into vulnerable concentrations.

However, military planners of the Atlantic Pact countries regard the combination of strong conventional forces and atomic weapons as the way to achieve and maintain an adequate defense of western Europe within the means of the North Atlantic Allies. They believe tactical atomic weapons—which are weapons suitable for use against troops—will enable the West to match the strength of Russia's army and air force with numerically much smaller units.

United States officials have placed the Russian army's present strength at 170 divisions, which compares with United States strength of 10 divisions plus a number of other units of less than divisional size. The Russian air force is also rated by United States officials as the largest in the world. Its long-range air force contains planes similar to the United States B-29 Superfortresses of World War II, which have an operating radius of about 2000 miles. It is generally believed to contain no planes of such range as the American B-36.

News that this country has developed atomic artillery shells and warheads for guided missiles recalls the report Defense Secretary Johnson made March 31 to President Truman. He said at that time that the United States is developing a wide variety of atomic weapons of different type and size, some of which promise to have tactical as well as strategic significance.

690 Graduated At Annapolis—385 as Fliers

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Annapolis, June 2.—This cradle of American seapower had its big annual day, commencement, today—and 385 of the 690 graduates left to seek careers, not as men of the quarterdeck, but as aviators.

The percentage seemed striking testimony to the claim in Defense Secretary Johnson's address that "unification is now a fact."

Even the first "Midshipman" married in the several wedding ceremonies afterwards in the Naval Academy Chapel had just started on an Air Force aviator's life.

Passing under the crossed swords and between the brace of great anchors that flank the chapel, with the battleship Missouri riding proudly in Annapolis Roads down the hill, were Air Force Second Lieut. John Simpson Sieg of Scranton, Pa., and his bride, the former Jacqueline Erselle Henry of Alexandria.

Of the 690 graduates, 214 had requested naval aviation duty and "been found physically qualified and aeronautically adapted" for it and 171 were commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Force.

Those who chose the Air Force were granted 60 days' leave while the Navy boys got only 30, but as one new Air Force Midshipman-shavetail pointed out with a wide grin, this had nothing to do with the choices.

But in Dahlgren Hall, it was the old naval ceremony, as color-packed, thrilling and sentimental as in days when all the men left to go down to the sea in ships.

A crowd of 7000, women predominant as at any commencement, filled every last inch of the great room, right up to the banks of the two 5-inch 38-twin mounts at one end.

It was a happy thing to see the crowd save their loudest cheers, and they shook the hall, for the Anchor Man, William Ward Anderson, jr., of Denver, Colo., who finished last in the '50 class.

Anderson got a special introduction from the brass on the stage. Then, wreathed in smiles a furlong wide, he was hoisted

Grew Notes Found In Amerasia Data

On House Floor

Hoffman Hits 'Hypocrisy' Of The Post

Representative Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) has accused The Washington Post of hypocrisy in advocating the disclosure to Congressional investigators of the financial supporters of lobbying organizations.

Hoffman told the House Thursday that an editorial in The Washington Post last Monday advocating disclosure was at odds with the general policy of the newspaper which, "for the last 10 years anyway, has usually been found defending everyone who was accused of corruption in government and found defending everyone accused of being a Communist, always condemning everyone who sought to expose either corruption or communist activities in the Federal Government."

The arch-conservative Michigan legislator implied that the reason The Washington Post now favored publicity on the financial backers of lobbies was the fact that the organizations currently under investigation by the Buchanan committee in the House were the Committee for Constitutional Government and the Constitutional Educational League "which are making a valiant effort," according to Hoffman, "to restore constitutional government in this country."

"It would be helpful," he asserted, "if The Post would be consistent and take a like position when subversive organizations refuse to disclose the sources of their funds."

Hoffman continued with the charge that The Washington Post, throughout fraud and deception, obtained the 1944 trial for sedition against 30 defendanes. The indictment and trial, Hoffman said, "was a most reprehensible, un-American proceding."

The Washington Post, he said, "has been unfair arbitrary, vicious and unprincipled in its attacks upon all those who, rightly or wrongly, disagreed with its editorial policy . . .

"The Post desires to exercise the right of free speech, but condemns others when they seek to express an opinion."

By the United Press

Assistant Attorney General James M. McInerney said yesterday documents seized in the 1945 Amerasia raid included notes on a wartime speech by Former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew on United States Pacific submarine operations.

He said that "without knowing," he believes the notes were written by former State Department employe Emanuel Larsen, who was fined $500 for his part in the "stolen secrets" case. Grew's speech was made before a group of department employes.

McInerney's statement, made to reporters, was aimed at clearing up his recent denials to the subcommittee that the Amerasia documents included "top-secret" material mentioned recently in published reports.

One report said one document told "exactly where more than a score of American submarines were in the late stages of the war in the Pacific" and that it was taken from the Navy Department at a time when all such information was extremely hush-hush.

'No Such Document'

McInerney said that while there was "no such document" in the Amreasia case, there was a personal note referring to a speech made by Grew before a group of State Department employes. The note said Grew stated "that some 25 American submarines in the Tsushima Strait were doing great damage to Japanese shipping."

He refused to evaluate the possible strategic value of the note and was unable to say how many persons heard the Grew speech. Grew was Ambassador to Japan for 10 years and later served as Undersecretary of State.

He said the Grew speech was made November 28, 1944.

McInerney said the Amerasia papers also included a State Department cable to the American Ambassador at Chungking summarizing the views of the magazine on aid to the Chinese Reds. The State Department previously had confirmed existence of the document.

It said the document, later seized in the 1945 raid on the magazine's New York offices, was a routine digest of then current thinking on Far Eastern affairs. Its classification was restricted. Similar reviews still are sent to United States diplomatic missions abroad, it added.

Signed By Hull

The cable was sent July 25, 1944, over the name of the then Secretary of State Cordell Hull. All outgoing State Department cables are "signed" by the secretary, however, and there was no indication Hull saw or signed it.

A State Department spokesman said the Chungking cable included a digest of an Amerasia issue prepared by the department's press section. He said it was sent abroad only for the information of United States missions and not as a guide.

It quoted an Amerasia article suggesting the possibility of using a Japanese, Susomo Okano, as the "Tito of Japan." Okano, the article said, could help the Japanese "establish a government which will discard aggression and the present ruling oligarchy."

Not "Veritable Bible"

There have been published reports the cable portrayed Amerasia as "a veritable bible" of American foreign policy. However, McInerney has denied that he saw any such description in any of the seized documents.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), member of a Foreign Relations subcommittee investigating communism charges against the State Department, yesterday suggested McInerney may be part of a "conspiracy" to hold up the Amerasia case.

He said wartime secrets of a "most serious and vital nature" were in the Amerasia files until at least a few days ago.

"I would hate to think that Mr. Inerney would lend himself and his official position to a conspiracy to conceal this information and to thwart an honest investigation of the facts," Hickenlooper said.

Sawyer Asks Firing Power

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, who is having trouble firing two trade officials in his department, said yesterday Congress should give Cabinet officers more authority to "discharge incompetent and troublesome employes."

Sawyer made that comment to reporters after refusing to discuss directly the cases of Michael E. Lee and William W. Remington. Lee and Remington have declined "on principle" to resign at the request of Sawyer.

Lee contends the real reason for asking his resignation is fear of a congressional investigation. The department is going ahead with ouster proceedings based on charges of "maladministration."

Sawyer talked with newsmen at the White House after the regular Friday Cabinet session. He said he had not discussed the Lee and Remington cases with President Truman.

Indicating a feeling that Civil Service regulations sometimes operate to keep people on the Government payroll who ought to be fired, Sawyer said that "in getting away from the spoils system, we have made it difficult to get rid of incompetent and troublesome employes."

He said a provision in a Commerce appropriation bill once was stricken out which would have given him authority to remove employes whose services might not be desirable. He added that he thought the omnibus appropriations bill had a provision to provide this authority.

Marshall Starts Jail Sentence For Contempt

George Marshall, national chairman of the Civil Rights Congress, yesterday began a three months Federal jail sentence imposed for contempt of the House in 1946.

Marshall was cited four years ago for refusing to turn over to the House Un-American Activities Committee a list of contributors to the National Federation for Constitutional Liberty. The organization, of which Marshall was chairman, was a forerunner of the Civil Rights Congress. He was convicted and sentenced in 1948.

The case had been on appeal until a month ago. The United States Circuit Court first upheld the conviction. Then the United States Supreme Court twice refused to consider the case—its last ruling being made last month.

Before surrendering to District Court authorities, Marshall said in a statement:

"I am going to jail today not with a feeling of guilt, but with deep concern that a part of the Bill of Rights goes with me. I am proud that I have fought to preserve our American tradition of civil rights, and for the final abolition of racial and minority discrimination."

Government authorities said they also plan to bring others involved in contempt of Congress charges into District Court to begin serving jail sentences or dispose of their cases.

Movie writers John Howard Lawson and Dalton Trumbo are due to appear next Friday. Each was given a one-year contempt sentence for refusing to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee in 1947 whether they were Communists. Each also was fined $1000.

They have been out on bond. The Supreme Court recently turned down their appeals.

Eight other Hollywood figures were cited for contempt with Lawson and Trumbo. They agreed to be bound by rulings on the law made on the appeals of Lawson and Trumbo.

The eight—all motion picture writers, directors or producers—are: Ring Lardner, jr.; Albert Maltz, Alvah Bessie, Samuel Ornitz, Herbert Biberman, Edward Dmytryk, Adrian Scott and Lester Cole.

Plans also were under way at District Court to require Dr. Edward K. Barsky and 10 other leaders of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee to begin serving time for contempt.

They were convicted of contempt for refusing to obey a House committee subpena

All in the anti-Fascist case are New York City residents. In addition to Barsky they are: Jacob Auslander, Lyman R. Bradley, Marjorie Chodorov, Howard Fast, Harry M. Justiz, Ruth Leider, James Lustig, Manuel Magana, Louis Miller and Charlotte Stern.

McCarthy to Fight Reds Despite Attacks

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) yesterday indicated that the blistering attack he received the day before from Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) would not deter him from his campaign against alleged "Communist infestation" of the Government.

His reply to Mrs. Smith's declaration that "certain elements of the Republican Party" were engaged in "the selfish political exploitation of fear, bigotry, ignorance and intolerance" came in the course of a Senate speech.

His language was indirect, but it seemed to refer clearly enough to the Senate's only woman member and the six other Republicans who joined with her in a "Declaration of Conscience" against political debasement of the Senate. Said McCarthy:

"Let me make it clear . . . that this fight against communism, this attempt to expose and neutralize the efforts of those who are attempting to betray this country shall not stop regardless of what any individual or group in this Senate, or in the Administration, may do or say."

He added that he did not consider himself responsible to them, but rather to the people of his State, the Nation and "to civilization as a whole."

In another apparent reference to the seven Republicans' stand, McCarthy said the country owed a debt of gratitude to the Senators who supported his fight. He continued, "I would like to call the roll of those Senators, but they were not impelled by political motives then and they are not looking for publicity or political gains now."

At another point of his speech, the Wisconsin Republican appeared to be responding to the attack Mrs. Smith had made on Senators using their congressional immunity from libel action while they conducted "character assassination" against outsiders.

McCarthy noted that the man against whom he made his principal attack, Owen Lattimore, had asked that McCarthy repeat his comments about him off the Senate floor, so that he could sue. McCarthy said he offered to do that provided Lattimore would "make his files available for any libel action," and that Lattimore refused.

(There is no record of such a request from McCarthy to Lattimore. Lattimore, in a letter to the Senate subcommittee investigating McCarthy's charges, offered to make available all his personal files. To a question from the subcommittee on whether he would petition the President to make available the FBI file relating to him, Lattimore answered in the negative. He said he did not mind in his own case, but thought such action would create a bad precedent. Editor's note.)

McCarthy's speech, delivered to an almost empty Senate chamber, challenged President Truman to make available "all" of the files on all of the persons McCarthy has accused, including the State Department and Civil Service loyalty files, and the FBI and other investigative files.

Mr. Truman has made available State Department files on the individuals McCarthy accused of pro-Communism in his "81 cases" speech of February 20, at the outset of his campaign.

If not files on all the cases, McCarthy implied, the President should open up all of the files on "just one case," but one of the "top men" he named, Lattimore, State Department diplomat John S. Service, or Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup.

McCarthy also said he had come to the tentative decision not to supply the investigating subcommittee any more names of possible witnesses for them, in view of the fact that he was not allowed to cross examine them himself, or attend when their testimony was taken in closed sessons. Furthermore, he declared, he did not want his witnesses to be subject to the "horse play and abuse" he alleged they had received in the past from subcommittee investigators.

For the first time since he began his campaign, McCarthy delivered a set speech without making any new or additional charges against the persons he has named. He singled out Jessup and State Department offcial Haldore Hanson for considerable comment, but only repeated accusations he had previously levelled against them.

West Studies Plea For German Police

Ready for Strike

Central Tokyo Is Closed to Red Jap Rally

Tokyo (Saturday) June 3 (AP).—The Communist "March on Tokyo" turned into a shuffle this morning, with no hint of violence.

Communist and labor leaders who had called for an "all out counterattack" bowed to massed police authority. They abandoned their favorite rendezvous in the center of Tokyo.

Police were alerted to enforce a ban against mass demonstrations such as the Communists had called for noon today in downtown Tokyo. The ban extends through Sunday's election of Councillors (National Senators).

Some 5000 persons attended a desultory mass meeting a few blocks from General MacArthur's headquarters. In the first hour, speakers carefully refrained from anti-American statements — although they had called the demonstration to protest American policy.

The Labor Ministry said the Red-called nation-wide "general strike" was a fizzle. Officials said a total of 100,000 workers were out in several plants throughout the country.

Japan has 6,250,000 union workers, of whom the Communists had boasted 400,000 would strike today.

There were these other swift developments in this nerve center of the Allied occupation.

1. A reported Japanes e plot to assassinate General MacArthur as he rode to his office was branded an "absolute fake" by Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby, MacArthur's intelligence officer.

2. The Japanese government was said to have handed MacArthur a plan for outlawing the Communists. The Communists supposedly know of the plan and are ready to go underground.

3. The defense virtually completed its case for eight Japanese accused of attacking five United States soldiers at a Communist rally Memorial Day. It was to protest this trial that the Communists called for demonstrations and the "general strike" today.

As for the alleged plot on MacArthur's life, Willoughby blamed the rumor on an "excitable" Japanese policeman. A Japanese, "apparently a paranoic" was held after he asked police to arrest him for having "bad thoughts."

Yanks Flock to Britain

London, June 2 (AP).—One hundred thousand Americans visited Britain last year and the 1950 total is expected to be even higher, the British Board of Trade said today.

By The Associated Press

The United States, Britain and France are studying a West German appeal for permission to establish a federal police force of 25,000 men.

Advance indications are that the United States is definitely cool to the idea.

But responsible officials told a reporter the United States, in a move to counter Russia's arming of an East German police force, may agree to strengthen police units now controlled individually by the 11 West German states.

The State Department reported the West German request came in a letter several weeks ago to the three governments from Chancellor Adenauer of the West German Republic.

Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said the problem has been handed to the American, British and French high commissioners to settle in Frankfort after discussions with German leaders.

Secretary Acheson, he said, discussed it with French Foreign Minister Schuman and British Foreign Minister Bevin during the London Foreign Ministers meeting this month.

Sufficient Data Lacking

"They did not feel, however, they had sufficient data and information to reach a decision at this time," he added.

McDermott said no guidance had been issued to the high commissioners and "no decision was reached at London as to the nature, or size or additional police units for Germany."

Informed officials said afterward the United States very likely will turn down the German suggestion, mainly because any centrally directed German police force will arouse fears of German rearmament.

Such a move, they said, might also open the way to Russian propaganda attacks of the type the west already has directed at Moscow for rearming an East German police force.

On May 23 the three governments sent separate protests to Moscow denouncing Russia for creating a 50,000-man police force with "the character of an army." The Allies said this force was equipped with tanks, artillery, machine guns, armored weapons and is receiving basic infantry and other army training.

Three Main Points

Adenauer is reported to have mentioned the threat posed by this force in his letter. It was not made public but officials said Adenauer based his plea mainly on what he said was the need to:

1. Maintain order in West Germany by quick police action and prevent such riots as those caused in the town of Salzgitter recently when Germans tried to stop dismantling of facotries.

2. Protect internal security more adequately, especially by checking refugees from the eastern zones to guard against Russian agents

3. Enforce federal legislation passed by the Bon Parliament.

American officials said the total West German state police units, including those in Berlin and specialized law enforcement officers, amounts to about 110,000 men.

The Russians, on the other hand, have about 150,000 men in their police froce including the 50,000 already described, they said.

These officials indicated that no immediate decision on the German request will be forthcoming because of the serious issues involved.

Capital Airlines Gets New Route

The Civil Aeronautics Board yesterday revised Capital Airlines' operating rights so as to provide a nonstop service between New York and Cleveland.

The action involved giving Capital an additional entry into New York City by way of Pittsburgh, by extending its route No. 14 linking Midwest cities with Pittsburgh.

At the same time, CAB rejected applications by American Airlines and Northwest Airlines, proposing various changes in their service setups.

The board said extension of Capital's Route 14 from Pittsburgh to New York City will also make possible single-plane service between Muskegun, Grand Rapids, Lansing and Flint, Mich., and New York on either a nonstop basis or with only a single stop at Cleveland or some other intermediate point.

East Germans Ask British for Asylum

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

POSE PROBLEM—Three members of the Communist-led Free German Youth organization who participated in the Soviet inspired Whitsuntide parade are among the 270 who are seeking asylum in West Berlin. They proudly display a cowboy necktie and gaily-colored handkerchiefs received in American Red Cross gift packages in the British sector of Berlin

'Thousands' Flee Red East To West Zone

Berlin, June 2 (AP).—Hundreds of refugees from the Soviet east poured in on West Berlin's welfare agency today with stories of escaping during the Whitsun Communist march of 500,000 youths.

An American official said West Berlin and west Germany are "just about bursting at the seams with refugees," but predicted the Germans would try to accommodate most of them.

German officials estimated several thousand were in the refugee wave, but were unable to give exact figures.

Among those seeking asylum were 270 young German Blueshirt deserters from the rally and 38 members of the Soviet sector "People's Police."

The Central Welfare Board classified the police deserters as "political refugees" with the right to live and work in West Berlin or west Germany.

The 270 youngsters refused under prodding to return to the Soviet zone and a special commission was set up to sort out those who may qualify to stay.

All the refugees said they took advantage of police preoccupation with the rally to slip away and hide along the sector borders or with friends and relatives until they could emerge with petitions for sanctuary.

Among the 38 police were some identified as members of the heavily armed East German military establishment that the Western Powers recently called an illegal army.

The Blueshirts in a refugee area of the British sector argued with welfare officers they must stay to escape the consequences of being branded as traitors back home.

An American spokesman said the Western Allies had invited the Blueshirts to cross the line on orderly visits to see the abundances of the West, but hadn't counted on their staying.

Authorities said not more than 10 percent qualify to stay on the grounds they were "persecuted persons."

Some of the 270 are looked on as simply adventurers. Teen-agers have told authorities they want to join the French Foreign Legion.

However, the main allure that brought them over seemed to be the comparative plenty of things to eat in the West.

5 Czechs 'Confess' Guilt In Espionage Trial of 13

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 2 (AP).—Czechs pleaded guilty to current charges of dealing with foreign agents totalled five today. Pleas of guilty were made by two more of 13 defendants being tried here.

The 13 are charged with high treason and espionage. Mrs. Frantiseka Zemonova, 68, former chairman of the National Socialist Party, pleaded guilty to "acting against the people's Democratic Regime," according to the official version of the trial.

Asked by the president of the five-man court whether she felt guilty of high treason, she answered:

"If the law says so, then I do."

The second defendant to take the stand today was Frantisek Preucil, 43, identified as a former publisher, who pleaded guilty to all the charges.

The prosecution obtained two other admissions of guilt yesterday and another on the opening day of the trial Wednesday.

Mrs. Zemonova described her part in an alleged underground organization with widespread activities. She said she was in contact with exiled leaders of her party through secret channels in which the agent of an American Counter-Intelligence Corps participated.

U. N. Group Delays Action On Jerusalem

Lake Success, June 2 (AP).—The United Nations Trusteeship Council today agreed to postpone until June 12 its discussion on plans for U. N. control of Jerusalem.

The Council must decide at this session whether it should try to impose international rule over Jerusalem or tell the General Assembly in September the U. N. plan is unworkable. Israel and Jordan, which occupy Jerusalem, are against the plan.

Roger Garreau, retiring Council president, told the delegates Israel has continued consultations with him, but that Jordan has ignored his letters and statements. Jordan was absent from today's session, too.

Russia walked out of the Council yesterday because it refused to oust the Chinese Nationalist delegate and open the way to seating a Chinese Communist.

Soviet Asks U. N. to Probe ERP's 'Bad' Effects

Geneva, Switzerland, June 2 (AP). Russia formally proposed to the United Nations Economic Commission today that the U. N. investigate "detrimental effects" of the European Recovery Program.

A resolution submitted by Soviet Delegate Amasasp Arutiunian urged also that the commission demand abolition of "the United States policy of compelling certain Western European countries to discriminate (against Eastern Europe) in the field of trade."

Rejection of the resolution by the Western majority on the commission is certain.

18 ERP Nations Adopt Plan To Succeed Marshall Aid

Paris, June 2 (AP)—Foreign Ministers of the Marshall Plan nations tonight adopted a five-year plan to succeed America's European Recovery Program.

The plan, announced by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation (OEEC), provides that Europe must "make available (to backward areas) large quantities of capital equipment and consumer goods within the compass of its resources" if Europe is to "maintain its world position."

OEEC officials said the plan calls for all 18 Marshall Plan areas to harmonize their economic policies "so as to avoid contradictions and the waste of resources" after Marshall aid ends in 1952.

"It will only be possible to restore the social and political balance of the free world if the development of economically backward areas proceeds rapidly," the proposal declared.

The announcement noted that the United States is embarking on a similar program (President Truman's Point 4 plan for backward areas), and added:

"If Europe wishes to maintain its world position it must take part in this enterprise . . ."

An OEEC spokesman said the long-term plan will require European nations to expand production and maintain a high level of investment.

The Council's efforts toward European unity have been strengthened by near agreement on a European Payments Union (EPU) for freeing trade from bilateral restrictions.

Ministers today instructed their experts to work out details on how to make their currencies interchangeable.

Capital Store Sales Off 3% In Latest Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar volume of Washington department store sales in week ended May 27 was 3 percent below the same 1949 week, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

This was exactly equal to the average dip in the entire Fifth Federal Reserve District, but contrasted with a 3 percent increase nationally during the same week.

For the four weeks ended May 27, local store sales exhibited the same 3 percent downturn.

Despite rather slow local sales—they've averaged 2 percent under 1949 so far this year—department stores here have been writing bigger orders for new goods and are keeping bigger inventories than a year ago. Latest figures show that outstanding orders as of April 30 were 4 percent greater than a year ago, while stocks of goods on hand April 30 were 5 percent larger.

Meanwhile, Dun & Bradstreet commented that retail trade slumped in the week ended Wednesday.

"The presence of adverse weather in many localities helped to decrease country-wide spending . . ." said the research agency. "The loss of a business day (Memorial Day) also contributed to the decline in consumer buying."

RAIL INCOME: The Association of American Railroads estimated the net income of Class 1 railroads for the first four months at 88 million dollars, compared with 98 million dollars during the corresponding period in 1949. The net income for April, 1950, was estimated at 38 million dollars, against 40 million dollars in the same month a year ago.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: A. H. Belfie has been appointed general sales manager of Buick Motor, succeeding O. L. Waller, who resigned because of ill health. At one time, Belfie served as zone manager in Washington . . . J. Frank Todd, formerly of Los Angeles, is manager of the new Washington group insurance office of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. . . . John P. Traynor, a former deputy superintendent of the New York State Insurance Department, has been appointed vice president and manager of real estate-mortgages for the Mutual Life Insurance Co of New York.

The plant, occupying the second floor of the new store and the adjoining store, has been greatly enlarged. Formal opening of the retail store and plant was on Thursday.

ODD LOTS: Southern Oxygen Co., Inc., Washington, declared regular dividend of 50 cents a common share, payable June 30 to stock of record June 20 . . . Amott-Baker realty bond price average in May advanced 0.6 percent, marking the eleventh consecutive rising month . . . The New York Cotton Exchange, starting Monday, will change its opening hour to 10:30 a. m. from 10 a. m. . . . General Motors Corp. produced 312,090 passenger cars and trucks during May, compared with 313,910 in April.

PROGRESS: Oriental Building Association, oldest institution of its kind in Washington, now has resources in excess of 11 million dollars, Secretary Ralph A. Xander reported at the eighty-ninth annual meeting. In addition to Xander, senior officers reelected included Chapin B. Bauman, president, and John G. Kolb, treasurer. All directors also were reelected.

EARNINGS: General Shoe Corp. reported net income of $951,135 or $1.28 a share for the three months ended April 30, against $570,387 or 74 cents a share in the same 1949 period. Other earnings statements:

Potato Growers Hit Canada Imports Plan

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Maine potato growers yesterday urged the Government to drop plans to permit Canada to ship more potatoes into the United States next year.

At the same time Agricurture Secretary Charles F. Brannan made the startling announcement that Maryland and Delaware potato growers had voted overwhelmingly against Government price supports for their crops this year.

Only 17 per cent of the Maryland and Delaware potato growers voted for supports. A total of 82.6 p cent voted against supports and t trols over plantings and sales of t crop they would have to ac- t wth price protection. A vote of 66 percent in favor of price supports would have been necessary to continue them.

Herbert W. Moore, secretary of the Potato Industry Council of Maine, Inc., Rep. Frank Fellows (R., Me.), Whitney Tharin, secretary of the National Potato Council, and others told a State Department hearing that this country should be cutting down potato imports instead of increasing them. They said Canada exported to the United States 11 million bushels of potatoes this year. At the same time the Government bought 15 million bushels of Maine potatoes to maintain fair prices.

Policeman Cleared In Shooting of Boy

An Anne Arundel County policeman, accused of the fatal shooting of a 14-year-old Industrial Home School fugitive May 5 near Wayson's Corner, Md., was cleared of a manslaughter charge yesterday in Marlboro Police Court.

The policeman, Pvt. William Walters, 30, was one of four Anne Arundel and Prince Georges policemen who fired shots at the victim, George William Mooney, jr., as the boy was attempting to elude capture by swimming the Patuxent River.

He was charged May 7 after an investigation showed he had fired the last shot before the boy fell to the ground after swimming to the Prince Georges side of the river. The bullet was not recovered.

In freeing Walters, Judge Alan Bowie declared that testimony failed to show any "gross or wanton negligence" on the part of the policeman.

He added that testimony of Major Ralph W. Brown, Prince Georges superintendent of police, showed that information received by police was to the effect that the escapee was a "dangerous desperado."

Testimony of the three other policemen involved in the chase, Corpl. Lawson Peed and Pvt. Benjamin E. Richards of Prince Georges and Pvt. Robert J. Mellin of Anne Arundel, agreed generally on the circumstances of the shooting.

Hearing of a manslaughter charge against Galen Funkhouser, 23, of Accokeek, Md., in the death of T/Sergt. Vernon Staley, of Bolling Air Force Base, after a fist fight between the two was continued until June 16 because a witness was unable to be in court.

Plea of Guilty By Erickson Is Anticipated

New York, June 2 (NYHT).—There were strong indications today that Frank Erickson will change his mind and plead guilty to charges of bookmaking and conspiracy.

On Wednesday, immediately after the admitted bookie whispered "not guilty" in Special Sessions to a 60-count criminal information and was released in $10,000 bail, a reporter advised Sol Gelb, Erickson's lawyer, there were persistent reports his client will alter his plea.

"No truth to it," Mr. Gelb responded then.

The same question was put tonight to Gelb.

"At the moment," the lawyer answered, "there's nothing to it."

The words "at the moment" were considered significant in informed circles. In addition, District Attorney Frank S. Hogan is known to feel that he has a solid case against Erickson. Only five weeks ago today—April 28—the gambler told a Senate subcommittee in Washington that he operates in 48 States, that he grosses $12,500,000 annually and that he nets about $100,000.

Extremely close gambling and sporting associates of Erickson pointed out today that if he goes to trial, which is scheduled to be set on June 12, Erickson will be putting some of his customers, as yet unidentified, on the spot. All believed to be respectable business men, they will be forced to testify.

Further, Erickson's friends said, even if he were convicted on all sixty counts he would not be sentenced to the maximum penalty—sixty years in jail and a $30,000 fine. He would receive, however, a much heavier jail term if he stood trial and was found guilty than if he admitted his guilt, it was felt.

Crime Probers Ask Telegram Files Be Saved

Senate investigators asked Western Union yesterday to cooperate in breaking up a Nation-wide crime syndicate by "freezing" its message files.

Chairman Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) of the special Crime Investigation Committee, made the request in a letter to Chairman Wayne Coy of the Federal Communications Commission which has jurisdiction over the telegraph company.

Copies of the messages, which normally are destroyed six months after they are sent, could give investigators hot leads on the Nation's gambling and racket kingpins.

New York gambler Frank Erickson, St. Louis "betting commissioner" James J. Carroll, and other members of te gambling fraternity recently totld a Senate Commerce Committee they use telegraph and telephone facilities freely in their operations.

The FCC, at Kefauver's request, already has asked the telephone companies to preserve their long-distance toll records beyond the customary six months.

Maryland Attorney General Hall Hammond told the House Commerce Committee yesterday that one-tenth of the Nation's syndicated crime problem would be wiped out if Congress passed an anti-slot machine bill.

Hammond testified that the other 90 percent of organized crime is connected with illegal betting on horseracing.

He testified on behalf of the National Association of Attorneys General in support of a Senate-passed bill which would ban shipment of gambling devices, including slot machines, in interstate commerce, except into States where they are legal.

Court Decision Takes Child From Mother

The Washington Post

Joyce Nicely embraces Mr. and Mrs. John E. Becker. Judge ordered her adoption by the couple

Girl, 7, Taken From Mother, Awarded Couple

when the mother, Mrs. Jean Nicely of Queenstown, Md., sought to have set aside the adoption petition of the Beckers. Mrs. Nicely said she had given consent to the adoption because she feared the Beckers might reveal her past.

The judge carefully traced the life of the mother, saying that she married a soldier in 1942 when she was 19 years of age, and when he went overseas, began living with another man only to learn that she was pregnant by her husband.

Mrs. Nicely, the court determined, gave one child, Joan, to her own mother, Mrs. Anne Smith, 1838 M st. ne., and Joyce to the Beckers.

Then Mrs. Nicely began living with a third man, with whom she bore a child out of wedlock, has another 8-month-old illegitimate son by a fourth man, and is living out of wedlock with yet another, said Judge Tamm. He said that not only was her life "licentious," but that she has "little regard for the truth."

He said he didn't believe her story about the threatened exposure by Becker. After Mrs. Nicely agreed to the adoption, she then said that she needed $3000, which Becker gave her.

"In the opinion of the court, Mrs. Nicely sold her own child for some $3000 and I am not convinced that the present action did not grow out of the refusal of the Beckers to pay her additional sums. The court . . . is inclined to be more sympathetic to the payment of funds on behalf of persons making a bona fide effort to adopt a child than it ever would be to the heartlessness of a woman, undeserving the name 'Mother,' who would sell her own child to further her desires," states the opinion.

In the case, the Board of Public Welfare said that twins should not be separated, but the judge refused to "sacrifice" the welfare of the twins to this "theory." He said that the Beckers are devoted to Joyce and that she is "radiantly healthy."

Mr. Becker is 60 years of age and his wife is 54. He makes more than $4000 a year. Mrs. Becker takes care of the house and of Joyce. They own their home and have a summer home at Colonial Beach. They have $30,000 in additional assets, which their attorney, Herman Miller, said will some day go to Joyce, for they are childless.

60 Families Flee Fiery River of Lava

Honolulu, June 2 (AP).—Mauna Loa in a spectacular eruption today sent its heaviest lava flow of the century to the sea, driving from 60 to 80 families from their homes and engulfing parts of villages.

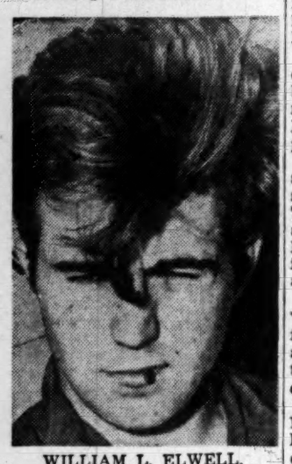
The world's most active volcano, breaking an 18-month slumber last night, launched a fiery, mile-wide river down its flanks. It curled for 25 miles before it plunged hissing into the Pacific.

Eyewitnesses estimated that 50 square miles of the volcano's slope were covered by new lava. The stream of melted rock flowed across plantations, through villages and across highways, knocking out communications. No casualties were reported.

From eight to ten sightseers were reported cut off when the flow split just before it crossed a highway. Families reported trapped, however, were brought out before a village was cut off.

The 13,680-foot giant on the Island of Hawaii, 200 miles from here, fed its destructive stream of molten rock with geysers spouting 500 feet into the air.

Nephew Admits Aunt's Murder



WILLIAM L. ELWELL, 19-year-old former Marine of Brunswick, Me., yesterday admitted to Portland police that he killed his wealthy aunt, Mrs. Viola L. Tully, 56, then directed police to the spot where he had dumped the body. He had driven 100 miles through three States with it. He was stopped by a Portland policeman who noticed blood stains on the car he was driving. Police said he was apparently a "mental case." He allegedly bludgeoned Mrs. Tully to death, wrapped her body in a sheet then placed it in the trunk of her automobile

Two Sentenced For Slayings, One for Arson

Two men were sentenced on manslaughter charges in District Court yesterday and a third was given a two to six-year sentence for arson.

Judge Alexander Holtzoff sentenced Robert Carter, 24, 1449 U st. nw., to serve from 5 to 15 years in jail. He was charged with second-degree murder, but pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Jessie M. Martin, 33, 1623 Marion st. nw., February 14.

Judge Bonita Shelton Matthews sentenced Aaron A. King, 54, 259 Warren st. ne., to serve from 2½ to 7½ years in prison. He was charged with the second-degree murder of his wife, who was found dead and badly bruised in the King home, March 12.

Frank H. Lichtenwalter, 45, was sentenced by Judge Jennings Bailey, on an arson charge growing out of a fire in a hotel in the 2000 block of O st. nw., last January. Lichtenwalter admitted throwing a lighted cigarette into a closet, but said he was "joking."

Jail Death Case Studied

U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay yesterday sent to the civil rights section of the Department of Justice his report on the case of Leroy Davis, 30-year-old prisoner who died in District April 28.

Davis died during a struggle with a guard, who has admitted wrapping a towel around the convict's neck.

"It will be up to the civil rights section to decide whether to go forward in the case," Fay said.

On Monday, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald reported to Fay that Davis died of acute heart failure, with "no marks or violence detected."

The FBI, the Police Department and District Jail officials have been investigating Davis' death. His body was exhumed in Fayetteville, N. C., on May 7 for a second autopsy.

Desperate Trio Held Cornered

Calhoun, Ga., June 2 (AP).—A scar-faced, red-haired woman and two desperate men, wielding a machine gun, baffled a posse today in a nervous search through wild hill country.

Officers, wary after three gun scrapes with the trio, said they thought the fugitives were trapped in an 18-square-mile armed ring.

But a night and day of poking by scores of police, aided by bloodhounds, two airplanes and portable floodlights, revealed few traces of the quarry.

One of the trio was believed wounded.

The chase began with gunfire yesterday when Tennessee Patrol Lieut. Danny Garland halted the car of the trio at Ooltewah in Southeast Tennessee for a routine check.

A pistol emerged from the car window and bullets spouted back and forth. Garland ducked behind cover to reload and the three headed for Georgia in his patrol car, equipped with a machine gun and 500 bullets.

Twice the fugitives ran into police road blocks. Both times they escaped under the machine gun, poked out of a smashed back window.

Then their bloodstained car was found near Calhoun late yesterday. Reports of a shift to other cars were investigated but were unsubstantiated.

A Tennessee Highway Patrol Radio dispatcher in Chattanooga, said the three were believed to be:

William J. Parker of Huntsville, Ala., wanted on five counts of burglary.

Louise Hamerick, 35, a redhead with a scar between her eyes, a native of this section.

Fred Scroggins, 26, also of this section.

In Slaying Trial

Tyler Denied Change of Venue

Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday denied a motion for a change of venue for the trial of William A. Tyler, accused of the Good Friday murder of two Lansburgh and Bro. department store watchmen.

Tyler's counsel, J. T. Wright, argued that "inflamed community attitudes" would prevent Tyler from getting a fair trial.

Judge Holtzoff said that public indignation centered on the crime, not Tyler.

Tyler's trial has been scheduled for June 14. He appeared in District Court handcuffed to two marshals.

Vandenberg: Present

It was with keen pleasure that those who attended the meeting on Friday of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee saw Senator Vandenberg in his customary place with his colleagues. The occasion was Mr. Acheson's exposition of the arms program. The Senator seemed quite recovered from his grueling siege with illness though he asked no questions, and probably is still in the process of catching up with affairs. In other respects, however, it was the same Vandenberg, except, perhaps, that the cigar may not be as potent as of yore, for of late the Senator is said to have been compelled to resort to, horror of horrors, the denicotinized weed. Let us hope he will soon be restored to a speaking as well as a listening role.

Arming The World

The Administration's request to Congress for $1,222,500,000 to carry the military-aid program through another year is made on the heels of a demonstration of progress in unifying the defense organization under the Atlantic Pact. Secretary Acheson came back from London with the news of the setting up of "balanced collective forces" and the appointment of a permanent Council of Deputies to reconcile military and economic demands. These steps represented the carrying out of the instructions of Congress. Last year the legislators wrote into the military assistance program a restriction on funds until there was integrated planning for the whole community. Transfers of military equipment so far have not been great, but they are increasing; moreover, the United States is helping with essential training.

Last year Congress refused the President a blank check to arm any nation he chose. Now he comes up with a similar though more limited, request for power to sell arms to countries not named in the aid program. It is bound to run into more or less the same opposition, especially in view of the language in which he couches it. "The threat of aggression," he said, "casts its shadow on every quarter of the globe." The trouble with this kind of bristling salesmanship is that it encourages the idea that the United States believes that war is inevitable—and this unnerves the very allies we are seeking to bolster. Secretary Acheson said somewhat the same thing though in a lot less provocative form.

The trouble with too much military muscle-flexing is that it oversimplifies the nature of the cold war. In this newspaper's view the danger is only in part military: the Soviet will flow anywhere the West is weak, militarily, morally, economically and politically. Its weapons are propaganda, disillusionment and discontent as much as armies. If Russia can force the West to commit large resources to essentially negative, static military defense, then it can strike in other fields. If American arms are strung thinly and ineffectually over the globe, the danger will lie in a false sense of security.

That is why this newspaper stumbles over the President's request for an amendment to military aid legislation enabling the United States to sell arms to countries not named in the assistance program. No one can really believe that American weapons sent to Liberia or Egypt would have any effect in stopping Russian military aggression. What is sure is that they would encourage an appetite for arms—and in too many instances they would give prestige to moth-eaten governments which ought to be spending any available money on internal reforms.

Agreed that perhaps a rigid exclusion on this score would be unwise. There is some sense, for example, in modifying the terms under which countries named in this aid legislation can buy arms, and in lifting the limitations which prevent this country from supplying industrial equipment to aided governments so as to enable them to manufacture their own materiel. Likewise, a case can be made that there ought to be some provision for diverting supplies to countries not specified, such as Yugoslavia, in a real emergency. But Congress, while not tying the hands of the Administration, ought to retain some sort of check to prevent the frittering away of American arms in every country that cries "wolf."

In sum, continuation of military aid is an essential part, but only one part, of defense in the cold war. There is no excuse for sending arms to any area where they would not be helpful. Even in Europe they will not be helpful unless they are accompanied by new and unconventional thinking about military defense—far more accent on psychological warfare, on means of countering guerilla activity, on every means of encouraging the feeling of partnership in building peace through strength. Nothing could be more damaging than to relax in the comfortable illusion that military aid by itself guarantees security.

Coal Vs. Oil

The current campaign to curb oil imports by raising tariff rates to prohibitive levels or imposing severe quota restrictions on imports is being aggressively promoted by representatives of the coal industry and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers. Imported oil, it is alleged, is displacing coal and aggravating unemployment in the coal industry. Independent oil producers likewise protest that decreases in domestic oil production are attributable to larger oil imports and are resulting in unemployment in the oil fields.

On the other side are ranged the large oil-importing companies which claim that recent decreases in domestic oil and coal production are not due to imports. They say that the 1949 cutback in the domestic output of crude oil, following the all-time record output of the previous year, would have occurred whether oil was imported or not. Furthermore, they insist that the total demand for heavy fuel oil (which constitutes a substantial part of oil imports) cannot be met from domestic resources, because heavy fuel oil cannot be made economically from domestic crude oil except on a by-product basis. And if more crude oil were domestically refined to meet the total demand for heavy fuel oil on such a basis, the production of lighter products would be excessive.

As for the coal industry, spokesmen for the oil-importing companies point out that coal does not compete with gasoline or diesel fluid for buses and tractors, while most of the fuel oil used for home-heating is produced from domestic crude oil, leaving heavy residual fuel oil used in factories and for the generation of electricity as the chief source of increased competition to the coal industry from imports. Last year the increase in imports of residual fuel oil is estimated as equivalent in heating value to about five million tons of coal, or slightly more than 1 percent of the amount of coal produced during that year.

The fact is that the coal industry has been losing ground for many years, due in part to repeated strikes that have forced consumers to turn to other sources of supply and to rising coal prices brought about by increases in mine wages. In large part, however, the shift is attributable, as the Standard Oil Co. of N. J. states, to "a changing pattern of the over-all energy market as served by coal, oil and natural gas." The coal industry, in short, is a depressed industry whose decline is due primarily to technological progress, accelerated by John L. Lewis' wrecking tactics.

Apart from the fact that the adverse effect of oil imports on domestic employment has been grossly exaggerated, there are other strong reasons for opposing the proposed restrictions on oil imports. The United States has encouraged American oil companies to extend their operations abroad. Both from an economic viewpoint and in the interest of national security these foreign oil holdings are an invaluable asset. Furthermore, the exclusion of oil imports would have extremely adverse effects on the economy of oil exporting countries. Venezuelan chambers of commerce, for example, point out that Venezuela is the second largest market for United States products (excluding countries such as England and Western Germany that finance imports with the aid of the ECA). If imports of oil from Venezuela, one of the principal sources of United States foreign supplies, were to be drastically reduced, Venezuela would be compelled to cut her purchases of our steel, automobiles, textiles and food. That, too, would mean fewer jobs for American labor. Incidentally, the profits of the American oil companies operating in Venezuela would decline and American investors would feel the effect. American oil exports would also encounter stiffer competition in world markets from Venezuelan oil exports to other countries.

To sum up: Proposals virtually to ban oil imports would set back our plans for helping other countries to build up their living standards and earn dollars, give the lie to our professions of belief in liberal trade policies, and jeopardize the national security by alienating friendly nations that have given us access to supplemental sources of oil supply that would be essential if this country were involved in war.

Amerasia

What lies back of the Amerasia case is just as mysterious to us as, we suspect, to most readers of the news stories. Back in 1945, when the case came before the courts, our comment wound up with a demand for "more prosecutions" on leakages to untrustworthy persons, if there were such leakages. That was exactly five years ago. As we said when the case was exhumed a month ago, we are content to leave the examination to the Tydings Committee, or any commission on the national security that the President might care to appoint. Meantime one or two points arise from the news stories that are comment-worthy.

One is a cable "Hull to Chungking," reported in such a way as to imply that Mr. Hull sent a cable to the Chungking Embassy quoting and seemingly indorsing proposals by Amerasia that a Communist be made the "Tito of Japan" to set up a postwar government. We don't know a thing about this case, or about Amerasia, but we do know something about Mr. Hull. And this suggestion about Mr. Hull is simply naive—we won't say fantastic. In the first place, we doubt whether Mr. Hull knew a thing about this telegram. It is the custom—and news correspondents ought to acquaint themselves with some of the customs of government—to sign messages going out of the State Department with the Secretary's name. In the second place, Mr. Hull's main interest in preparing for the peace was the establishment of the United Nations. He wanted a good peace, not a vindictive peace. This was shown in his opposition to the Morgenthau plan on Germany, and, though we never heard him talk about Japan, his attitude on Germany is an indication of the processes of his thinking on Japan.

Our inference is fortified by the revelation of State Department policy on Japan when the war in the Pacific was drawing to a close. The total warriors demanded a clean sweep in Japan, Emperor and all. They tried to rush the Administration off its feet, but James Byrnes and James Forrestal stayed firm, resisting the demand with great courage and persistent argument. In the end they prevailed, and we would hazard that in his stand Mr. Byrnes was doing precisely what Mr. Hull would have done, and was, in fact, influenced by him. Tito of Japan, indeed!

Welfare Plan

Health, education and security are intimately related aspects of the public welfare which the Constitution of the United States was established to promote. This newspaper has long urged the creation of a tenth department in the Federal Government, headed by a member of the President's Cabinet, to coordinate activities in the three fields. We welcome, therefore, the President's new plan for this purpose, submitted to Congress on Wednesday, as we welcomed the essentially similar plan rejected by Congress in 1949. Under the present proposal, the new agency would be given the somewhat cumbersome title, Department of Health, Education and Security, instead of the more simple name, Department of Welfare.

As the new name indicates, the President has elected to retain in the proposed department the extensive medical and health services of the Federal Government. This was vehemently opposed two years ago by the American Medical Association, which preferred a separate Department of Health. The opposition of this and other professional bodies had a good deal to do, no doubt, with the rejection of the plan by Congress. Since then, moreover, the Hoover Commission has backed the idea of joining the Public Health Service with the medical and hospital services of the Veterans Administration in an independent United Medical Administration.

Nevertheless, the President seems to us to have the better of the argument. Health is not an isolated problem. It vitally affects, and is affected by, education and economic status. The three problems ought to be dealt with on an integrated basis. The President has made an accommodation to congressional fears that the health services might be subordinated by providing in the new proposal that the Surgeon General, and also the Commissioner of Education, retain all the statutory authority and duties now vested in them. This seems a wise concession, and we hope it will set at rest objections to a reorganization that is greatly needed and long overdue. The country needs a more vigorous and better coordinated welfare program than the existing Federal Security Agency, lacking Cabinet status, can provide.

Panama Tolls

Bills now before the Senate Armed Services and House Merchant Marine Committees would bring about some long-overdue adjustments in the operation of the Panama Canal. Under these bills the canal business functions would be divorced from the civil government of the Canal Zone; control of the canal itself would be transferred to a new Panama Canal Company. An important new provision is that tolls would be charged for passage of Government vessels, or amounts equivalent to the tolls would be treated as revenues of the canal company.

These improvements in the management, however, do not hit at the basic inequities in the present operations. Present tolls, assessed only against private shipping, are based on the full capital cost of the canal plus interest, with no allowance for the share of the cost which ought rightfully to be borne by national defense. Another bill, introduced by Senator Magnuson, would remedy this discrepancy. For rate purposes this bill would reduce the capital structure of the canal by the proportion that could fairly be charged to national defense. At the same time it would require that tolls reflect only a proportionate share of the cost of such dual-purpose facilities as schools, fire protection and the like. Under the present arrangement, for example, the military pays nothing toward upkeep of the schools, although 45 percent of the students in white schools are children of military personnel.

Just what the national defense share of the canal cost is, Senator Magnuson does not stipulate. It would be extremely difficult to assess this quota precisely, which is one reason why the Bureau of the Budget shied away from such an apportionment in its recommendations for changes in operating structure. However, it is not exaggerating to say that national defense is at least half the value of the Panama Canal. As it is now, private shipping is bearing the whole burden of the military benefits. Tolls are expensive; for example, it costs more than $6000, or the salary of the crew for a month, for an average freighter to pass through the canal. Measures to lessen this burden would be special interest legislation to the extent that the American shipping industry would benefit, but they also would remove a not insignificant barrier to world commerce.

THE OLD CELLAR HOLE

Heaped in a hollow the chimney stones lie—
No wall save the forest, no roof but the sky.
Strangled by leafy arms, lost among briars,
Mother your lilacs light memory's fires!
Where the first apples reddened and fell,
Where the filled bucket rose cool from the well,
Father, your dream is still living and dear—
Shrine in the wilderness, heart's home is here!

Saving Europe

The Schuman proposal that France and Germany pool their coal and steel industries—which would not only solve many of the difficulties of both countries involved, but also foster European unity—received, on the whole, a frigid to a hostile reception in London. This is in marked contrast to the enthusiastic ovation witnessed in Washington.

In 1952, the Marshall Plan aid will end and all European economy will have to rely on its own initiative and strength. It is indeed gratifying to the American taxpaying backers of the Marshall Plan to realize that their economic efforts have taken root. The Schuman proposal attests that Europe is not hopelessly divided and that the instinct to survive, and to live as free and independent peoples is not lost.

Someone should read to the British Parliament Churchill's now famous Zurich speech, which urged France and Germany to forget their differences and unite to save Europe; perhaps then the London atmosphere, although still foggy, would become somewhat warmer toward the proposal. The world too well knows that if Europe is to be saved it must be done by Europeans like Schuman.

Security For Disabled

The House passed and sent to the Senate H. R. 6000, a bill to broaden and extend the social security program and make more "liberal" payments to beneficiaries. This bill, as passed by the House, also included a provision to make payments to those permanently and totally disabled. The Senate Finance Committee, however, has seen fit to delete the provision for payment of benefits to those permanently and totally disabled, a group willing but unable to work and earn a living.

It is hard to understand why such a group should be legislated against. While some men at 65 drawing benefits are still physically able to do work of some kind, this is not the case when a man is permanently and totally disabled. In this group you will find World War veterans, some who have paid for as many as 10 years into social security funds. Have some of our Senators in considering this "liberal" legislation really given any thought to those unfortunate enough to be disabled?

Democratic Drouth

I have just read, with a great deal of interest, Mr. Hubert E. Page's letter of May 27, "Leaderless GOP."

It is quite true that the GOP is leaderless, but I see no good reason to specify the GOP. Thanks to the extreme care and political dexterity of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the Democratic Party, such as is left of it, is also entirely leaderless. FDR sat complacently in the White House, with a very long pole in his powerful hands and every time any Democrat displayed sufficient intelligence and acumen to indicate that he might get to be a real statesman—possibly of presidential proportions—he would get a whack on the head from that long pole. He would be made Commissioner of the Philippines, a Supreme Court Justice, or an Ambassador to Timbuctu.

We certainly have no leader in the White House, and such would-be leaders as we have in Congress are spending most of their time on their political fences, log-rolling the pork-barrel, quarreling over who was not a Communist 8 or 10 years ago, lobbying bills through Congress to give themselves a little more gravy in the way of perquisites. Anything other than an honest facing of the financial condition we are in. From this broad accusation I would specifically except several sincere and honest men, such as Senators Byrd, Kefauver, Ellender, O'Conor, Fulbright, and a few others.

One other point I would like to make in connection with Mr. Page's letter: He says, "Unless a bold and fearless effort is made and soon by Republicans to do away with much of our astounding subsidies and so-called foreign aid, so unjustified by our financial condition, the voters themselves may jolt those complacent, useless lawmakers by turning boldly to the left." That word "complacent" is what I am after. I heartily agree, Mr. Page; they are very definitely quite complacent. But the vast number—running into the millions—of still more complacent citizens who do not exercise their right of franchise year in and year out—they are the real cause of our desperate situation right now. They are the complacent ones.

Information To Russia

I have been greatly interested in the possibilities inherent in Dr. Millikan's (or was it Mr. Drew Pearson's?) plan of sending information to the Russian people via balloons.

Whatever is done, must be accomplished with the least friction and bitterness. I believe the idea of sending over balloons might stir up less antagonism than some other methods proposed.

Way To Peace

As I rode up from the South the eve of Decoration Day (now happily a holiday both there and in the North), a great rainbow spanned the sky. Sometimes as the train turned it was a great arch under which we seemed to ride; then it would appear on the right, the whole perfect bow beautifying the evening sky. I wondered if it could be an omen of peace.

In September, 1939, I had made this journey driving, and in every town "extras" were being called as World War II broke in Europe. I wonder what became of the handsome bronzed boy in the filling station in Virginia who said bitterly he "hated war."

Wednesday's paper carried General Marshall's great words at Arlington as he pleaded that the United States lead the way to peace. Why does it have to be a former Secretary of State and not the incumbent in office who calls for this action? Americans want to know.

Dickens' Law

I feel that I should point out that Mr. John L. Laskey, president of the District Bar Association, in your issue of May 28, is in error in calling Dickens a lawyer (Holdsworth, Dickens as a Legal Historian, 6, 9; Some Makers of English Law, 215). He was not much concerned with the technical rules of law, and made at least one bad mistake in his law. He was a lawyer's clerk at the age of 15; a law reporter at 18; and he had been a litigant against publishers who pirated the Christmas Carol. Throughout his life he numbered famous lawyers among his friends.

Mr. Laskey might have mentioned Francis Bacon and Lord Macaulay as lawyers who are outstanding for literary style. Others include Lincoln, Webster, Hamilton and Cicero.

Remington And Lee

I was shocked by the announcement on May 27 that Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer had called for the resignation of William W. Remington and Michael H. Lee "in the interest of good administration in the department," although there was no "intention to reflect in any way on the loyalty of either."

Two days before, according to the New York Times, Mr. Sawyer appeared before the Senate Commerce Committee "to go over charges" against Mr. Lee made by Senator George W. Malone, and the "committee was reported to have insisted on the dismissal of Mr. Lee. Otherwise, it was said, a full-scale investigation of the Commerce Department would be started." Remington and Lee refused to resign, and the proceedings have been instituted, at the direction of the Secretary, to oust them from the department.

Mr. Remington was cleared in February, 1949, by the Loyalty Review Board. He was recently reinvestigated by the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and now faces the possibility of an indictment for perjury based on his testimony that he was not a member of the Communist Party, before that committee, which had previously heard two former Communists testify that some 12 or 14 years ago he was a Communist. Charges against both men are now pending before the Loyalty Board of the Department of Commerce.

I know neither of these men, nor am I familiar with the evidence against them. But the Secretary, under the threat of congressional investigation, is dismissing them while both are under fire, accused in substance of being traitors. If their competence was really at stake, he should have acted long ago, and not immediately after a conference with the Senate Committe.

If the additional evidence as to their loyalty had indicated a possible security risk, he could have suspended them, pending a ruling of the Loyalty Board. He proposes to discharge them, not because they are incompetent or disloyal, but because the Senate Committee has told him to do so, or else . . . That apparently is what he means by the phrase "in the interest of good administration."

Is he afraid of an investigation?

The Secretary has, so it seems to me, not only committed a cruel injustice against these two employes, but has seriously injured "good administration." He has disregarded the loyalty procedure set up by the President to hear such charges, and has flouted the President's instruction that it be followed, preferring to take Senator Malone's hint, and pretending that his action would not reflect on the loyalty of the men he is throwing out without a hearing on the real charges.

I suggest that the Secretary lacks courage, when courage is so needed in these days of McCarthyism and mass hysteria—the kind of courage that his predecessor, Averill Harriman, displayed when Dr. Condon was under the same kind of attack from the Committee on Un-American Activities.

Flight to Yesterday

(Scene—A meeting of the Association for Advancement.)

Chairman—We have met to decide what we should do to prepare for the climax of cold war tension expected in the period, 1952-54.

Mr. Rote—Just a minute! There's some unfinished business—about who was to blame for our Founders' Day dinner deficit in 1937.

Mr. Trumpet—Mr. Chairman! I charge a whitewash! Why haven't we finished our investigation as to who it was that came to our 1944 Halloween dance wearing an outsize mustache?

Mr. Dare—I protest this obsession with the past! As president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., let me warn that time is running out on us. American, British, French authorities all agree that the most critical period in the cold war will begin in 1952. What are we doing about all this?

Mr. Rote—We can't do anything until we've had the minutes of our last meeting read.

Mr. Trumpet—I charge that our last meeting was illegal. I have it from hearsay—I mean secret sources—there wasn't a quorum present.

Mr. Gumm—I move an investigation.

Mrs. March—Let's do something to stop Congress from turning into a pillar of salt. Bills vital to our national security are being held up because legislators are so bogged down trying to find out who didn't do what might have been done the day before yesterday. I move a psychiatric investigation of the congressional mind.

MR. TRUMPET—I charge that motion is an attempt to sidetrack our investigation of the mustached man who infiltrated our Halloween dance!

Mr. Brash—I resent that smear technique!

Chairman—Order, please! Let's get on with our business.

Mrs. McAddle—I thought we were going back with it—to the Halloween dance.

Mr. Rote—Mr. Chairman, before we go on—I mean back—any further there's that missing record of the club historian for 1939.

Mr. Trumpet—I charge the files have been raped! Now what year was it these Halloween masqueraders with the big noses—

Mr. Stepp—Wait! In your first statement there was only one and he had a big mustache.

Mrs. McAddle—But doesn't HE have both a big mustache and a big nose?

Mr. Dare—Let's move up to 1950. I move we ask the Senate to do something at once on bills for civil defense against atomic attack, on standby legislation for Government controls in event of war, on measures to accumulate stockpiles of critical war material.

Judge Pudd—Just a minute! That smacks of regimentation.

Mr. Brash—Say, brother, if we have an atomic war you'll really find yourself regimented.

Mr. Trumpet—I charge that's a subversive statement.

Mr. Brash—Charge on, charge on——

Chairman—Order please!

MRS. MARCH—I'm opposed to this defeatist attitude about war. We still have a year and a half supposedly. I move we mobilize our brains and our energy to strengthen all peace forces.

Judge Pudd—The little lady is confused—emotional.

Chairman — Mr. Nesselrode Groove, civic leader, wants to speak.

Mr. Groove—I move we reaffirm our opposition to war and urge more preparation for it.

Mr. Dare — Since a time of great tension is closing in on us, I propose we start some psychological defense to stand strain—

Judge Pudd—Now wait! We don't want to get mixed up with these psychiatrists.

Mr. Trumpet — I demand to know who invited the mustached man to our Halloween dance in 1937! I also demand a purge of our membership lists.

Judge Pudd—Yes! I understand some introverts are on it.

Mr. Dare—What are we going to do about 1952?

Judge Pudd—How can we do anything? It's a presidential campaign year.

Chairman—Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus, our ace project woman, wants to speak.

Mrs. St. Vitus — I'm due at three garden parties and two television shows this minute, but I want to suggest that in view of the crisis we face, we now strengthen public morale by staging a pageant depicting the past history of this group. It would be most picturesque. And we could have a big Halloween scene featuring the man with the mustache.

"Professional" Jurors

In the report in the May 25 issue of The Washington Post on the meeting of the Committee of the Administration of Justice, Colonel E. Goring Bliss was quoted: "Fewer 'experienced' jurors are reaching court panels here . . . The new and 'inexperienced' jurors . . . creating a 'serious problem'."

Our system of justice—trial by jury—was devised to give every man an equal chance to defend himself before a panel of 12 men or women like himself.

Professional men in a court of law are and should remain judges and lawyers. "Professional" jurors would deprive a man of fair trial.

Don't Rock The Boat

By Marquis Childs

Prosperity And The Democrats

IN THEIR all-important effort to stage a comeback this fall and capture control of Congress, the Republicans have a major handicap. That is the lush, full-blooming boom that has developed with every indication that it will be sustained at least through the fall and into the winter.

Childs

The party in power has always claimed credit for prosperity, just as President Truman is doing now. And while the voter takes these claims with a whole handful of salt, he has customarily shown in the past a reluctance to rock the boat and endanger such good fortune by substituting the outs for the ins.

It is nearly as difficult today to buy some kinds of steel as it was immediately after the end of the war. Some steel plants have firmly committed their ouput anywhere from a year and a half to two years in advance. In order to buy a popular make of automobile, you must again go on a waiting list in many cities.

The five-year contract signed between General Motors and the United Auto Workers seems to assure a long period of industrial peace. Undoubtedly, this extraordinary agreement will influence the pattern of collective bargaining throughout all industry.

In view of all this, the Democrats should be happily harmonizing on the theme of victory and the full-dinner pail—in modern parlance the full-dinner pail means a television set and, on the average, a car and a half to each family. But are they doing that? Not at all. Many of them are behaving as though they were the Republicans' secret weapon, bent on overcoming the advantage of high prosperity.

In the primary in Florida the two candidates called each other Red and traitor and other unfriendly names, all of which was spread over the press not of Florida alone but the Nation. The defeat of Senator Claude Pepper was widely acclaimed, and with some reason, as a blow to the Administration.

In the North Carolina primary the chief challenger, Willis Smith, is more Republican than all except a few of the Old Guard in what might be described as the William McKinley survivors' wing of the party. Although he is an ultra-respectable former president of the American Bar Association, Smith's managers used demagogic tactics against Senator Frank Graham, invoking the Negro and the Red issue, almost as extreme as in Florida.

In the California primary now coming up, backers of Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas are indignant over aspersions cast by Publisher Manchester Boddy, her opponent. Boddy, in his Los Angeles Daily News, intimated that his opposition—and therefore Helen's support—came from a small minority of "red hots" using the "sound gains achieved by the Democratic Party as a beachhead from which to launch an un-American attack against the United States on behalf of Communist Russia." Mrs. Douglas' friends are fearful that if she is the victor in the primary, this will be turned against her in the fall election.

WHEN YOU look at the Republican Party, you see a striking contrast. There, in spite of the barnacles that cling so tenaciously, the outline of a modern party—a party that does not look always to the past, a party that stands for something positive and that does not twang incessantly on the negative—is becoming visible.

The most encouraging evidence, of course, is the trouncing that Gov. James Duff administered to the creaking, turn-back-the-clock Grundy machine. Duff is certainly no flaming liberal. But he is a vigorous and practical politician who knows that negativism cannot win except by default in total bankruptcy when a victory would be nearly worthless.

The more than 2-to-1 victory of Senator Wayne Morse over his horse-and-buggy opposition in the Republican primary in Oregon is another portent. Morse's victory was in spite of some secret maneuvers of the Old Guard of the GOP, including, as the Senator had reason to believe, a hidden slush fund for his opposition sent in from Chicago.

There is the fine affirmative stand of Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine against McCarthyism and the political degradation that it implies. Another and somewhat different sign of a trend in the same direction is Senator Taft's attempt to deny that he had offered aid and comfort to Senator McCarthy.

"Don't rock the boat" or "Let's enjoy it while we can" may be just about the most effective slogans that a divided Democratic Party can employ this fall. But they may not be good enough if the Republicans can continue to form a revitalized party around constructive elements now taking the lead.

self-sufficient in all branches of armaments; each would specialize in what it could do best for the common defense, and all would fit their armed forces together for this purpose.

The anonymous high official said on May 18 that this would require a stronger American Navy and Air Force. Acheson explained yesterday, however, that the new North Atlantic arrangement did not affect the responsibilities of the United States, or of other countries, outside the Atlantic area.

His inference was that the United States, Britain and France had especially heavy military burdens in the Pacific and Indian Ocean areas, and would continue to carry them.

Only 9 of the 26 members of the combined Senate committees were on hand to hear Acheson outline the new military aid program. His long prepared statement was calmer in tone than President Truman's of Thursday, but covered the same ground.

The Secretary talked cheerfully of "a new spirit" in western Europe," characterized by the conviction that the defense of the Atlantic are a is a real and attainable objective."

He outlined the changes he wanted in the present law; the special need of military aid in Greece, Turkey, Iran and the Far East, and the new request for "a limited amount" of money for use in any other country "in the event of a critical emergency requring immediate action and gravely affecting the security of the United States."

"The interests of the United States are global in character," he said. "A threat to the peace of the world anywhere is a threat to our security. Vigorous, intelligent and sustained action on our part is essential to the preservation of our liberty."

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) suggested that some North Atlantic nations were not doing their fair share in spending for defense. Acheson answered that some of these countries, hard hit in the war, were "earnestly trying" to increase their military budgets. He promised to go into this subject fully in executive session.

Answering Senator Smith and Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), Acheson said western Europe was attaining unity "with rather amazing speed" at the present time. He cited as evidence the Schuman proposal for pooling French and German industries, and the imminent creation of a European Payments Union.

On his recent trip to Paris and London, the Secretary said, he found "a very distinct improvement in morale, in courage, in standards of living, and in the determination to go forward with collective defense." He reported "a fine spirit" and "no attitude of defeatism" among the Europeans.

"It isn't primarily a problem of 'containing' anyone," he said. "The whole purpose of the Marshall Plan and of North Atlantic defense has been to prevent war and to preserve peace, by persuading an aggressor not to take a chance. That is what we are accomplishing."

Peace Committee, Miffed at Rogge, Cancels His Talk

London, June 2 (AP).—The executive committee of the Communist-led "World Committee of the Defenders of Peace," miffed at O. John Rogge's efforts on behalf of Yugoslavia, decided not to let him make a speech last night, the former United States Assistant Attorney General announced today.

Rogge had offered a resolution to readmit expelled Yugoslavia to the World Committee, of which he is a vice president. The executive committee did not—as was reported yesterday—reject his petition outright, Rogge said, but referred it to a full session to be held later this summer. Then the committee decided that it would be a good idea if Rogge would not address the peace rally.

Rogge said the executive committee probably could have acted on his petition. He said he told the committee:

"A peace movement or group must not become identified with the foreign policy of any particular country. I have in mind specifically the United States and the Soviet Union. Neither American capitalism nor Russian communism is to be imposed on any other country."

cisions" is the only way to provide lasting European prosperity and "adequate military defense of the West", against "the nuclear world government that is being established east of the Iron Curtain."

Dr. Urey said that no military command "can obey the orders of some twelve sovereign governments"

Clarence K. Streit, author of "Union Now," sharply criticized Secretary of State Acheson's concept of American-European military cooperation. It can end, he said, "in worse disaster to us than the China policy."

Streit attacked the concept of "balanced collective forces" mentioned in Acheson's talk to Congress members on Wednesday. This is the arrangement under which, for example the United States might take responsibility for air and atomic operations while continental Europe supplied the infantry.

Streit said that no effective military force on such lines could be developed under the Atlantic Council, because its "procedures are so vague" and its powers "merely recommendatory."

Nor could such a division of tasks be anything but disruptive, he said, for it would give the unpopular infantry role to "the men whose morale is most likely to be undermined by this assignment."

The only answer he asserted, "is that followed by the 48 States—that of forming a Federal union, with a common army, air and naval forces whose men are drawn indiscriminately from all the States for all services."

rate to 4.9 cents a pack on economy brands but lets the 7 cent tax stand on standard brands (usually retailing at 17 cents).

The action is still subject to a motion to reconsider, however, providing it is made by a member who formerly voted for the economy brand cuts.

The Treasury said the reduced rate on low-priced cigarettes would cost the Government 90 million dollars but economy brand manufacturers challenged that estimate.

Other actions clinched by the committee yesterday:

Halved the present 20 per cent rate on admissions (revenue loss $192,000,000), jewelry (revenue loss $104,000,000), furs (revenue loss $22,000,000), luggage (revenue loss $59,500,000), and toiletries (revenue loss $50,000,000).

Watches retailing under $65 as well as all clocks seling under $5 were completely exempted. Also fully exempted were purses, wallets, key cases, kits, baby oils, baby powders and articles used in barber and beauty shops.

Still subject to final action by the committee are some $534,000,000 in excise tax cuts tentatively voted on items ranging all the way from electric light bulbs and household refrigerators to photographic equipment and sporting goods.

The bill is still more than 600 million dollars shy of enough new revenue to offset the cuts. Action on the President's proposal to raise corporate tax rates 4 per cent to balance the cuts was postponed until next week.

Occupation Costs Hit

Bonn, Germany, June 2 (AP).—The West German Parliament today appealed for a reduction of Allied occupation costs and complained the Allies are taking up too much of the German's cramped living space.

Red Newsmen Barred From Press Galleries

Applications of two United States State Department and two Soviet reporters for admission to the congressional press galleries were turned down Thursday night by the standing committee of correspondents.

The committee of five correspondents governs the Senate and House press galleries. Its action is subject to review by the Senate Rules Committee and the Speaker of the House.

A unanimous vote overruled the State Department's appeal from an earlier order denying gallery rights to two representatives of the United States Information Service.

The service disseminates news in foreign countries. Its representatives now operate out of the periodical galleries, which are not under control of the standing committee.

A 4 to 1 vote tabled the applications of Grigorii Rassadin and Ivan A. Filippov for admission to the press galleries as reporters for Pravda, official Russian Communist publication.

The committee notified the State Department and the two Soviet applicants that gallery membership is limited to resident Washington correspondents. Rassadin and Filippov have been stationed in New York.

By tabling the applications, instead of rejecting them outright, the committee left open the way for later reconsideration.

The committee defeated a resolution which would have prevented the Tass News Agency and the New York Daily Worker, Communist publications, from having additional correspondents accredited to the press galleries.

Tass now has five reporters in the galleries and the Daily Worker has two.

The resolution would have denied gallery membership to any employes or representatives of the United States Government or any foreign government, or any agency thereof, and to any political organization or its representatives. It would have exempted the Tass and Daily Worker reporters now in the galleries but would have prevented replacements if any of them resign or are transferred.

Socialists Told to Win Labor, Liberals Away From Democrats

Detroit, June 2 (AP).—The Nationalist Socialist Party was told today that it must "win those liberals and laborites who are now working with the Democrats" to form a successful party "along the lines of Britain's Labor Party."

But at the same time, Harry Fleischman, the party's secretary, predicted that "the overwhelming probability is that labor will again string along with the Democrats, not only in 1950 but also in 1952."

Stephen Siteman, membership secretary, predicted "lively debate" at the party's twenty-seventh national convention Saturday on whether the Socialists will offer a presidential candidate in 1952.

Norman Thomas, the party's perennial presidential candidate, declared in keynoting the convention that the United States needs socialism because "peace, plenty, freedom and the fraternity of free men can never exist under the supremacy of King Private Profit."

The 150 delegates here for the biennial Socialist convention spent most of today in routine committee appointments, listening to Thomas, and hearing reports from Fleischman, and National Chairman Darlington Hoopes of Reading, Pa.

In a financial report read to the convention today it was revealed that the party went $12,000 in the red in the 1948 presidential campaign.

Principal business Saturday will be drafting of a platform for 1950 congressional races and deciding upon whether to enter a 1952 presidential candidate.

Thomas and Fleischman attacked the Democratic Party and President Truman, both claiming that neither the party nor its standard bearer has carried out campaign promises.

"A number of union leaders," Fleischman said, "have begun again to call for the creation of a national new party because the Democrats have failed to deliver on their promises.

"The new party ranks are still small and we must do all in our power to help them grow . . .

"Only if we win those liberals and laborites who are now working with the Democrats can we hope to create a successful mass farmer, labor and people's party in the United States, along the lines of Britain's Labor Party."

Thomas told the delegates that "what democratic socialism offers to America is a philosophy and a set of ideals, a standard of ethics without which our marvelous machinery will never be operated for human values."

President Truman's "Fair Deal," Thomas said, "offers hope to the masses of people" and is dangerous "not because he has left the old capitalistic moorings but because he rejects the Socialist compass to guide him."

Keleher Furniture Sale Balked

Judge Edward M. Curran yesterday issued a temporary restraining order, preventing the Distict from selling Dolly Keleher's furniture to satisfy a $1628 tax lien until the rightful owner can be determined.

Judge Curran ordered James J. Laughlin, Mrs. Keleher's lawyer, to put up a $3000 bond to indemnify the District against any loss that might be incurred.

Laughlin claims Mrs. Keleher, ex-wife of the former gambler, John. B. Keleher, assigned the furniture to him in lieu of legal fees. He claims the District has no right to sell his furniture to collect her taxes.

Assistant Corporation Counsel George C. Updegraff told Judge Curran he was prepared to prove Laughlin did not own the furniture and had no intention of owning it before filing the suit seeking to restrain the tax sale.

The temporary restraining order is good for 10 days.

Belgians Apathetic About Sunday Vote On Leopold's Fate

Brussels, June 2 (AP).—With the people showing unmistakable signs of weariness with the whole situation, Belgium votes again Sunday on the fate of King Leopold.

More than five million Belgians over 21 are eligible to vote to choose a new Parliament. The major issue is the future of the monarch who surrendered to the Germans in 1940 and who has been in exile since the end of World War II.

Belgians in June, 1949, elected 105 Social Christians, 66 Socialists, 29 Liberals and 12 Communists to the lower house, and 91 Social Christians, 51 Socialists, 26 Liberals and 6 Communists to the Senate.

Leopold won 57.67 percent of another vote, but a coalition government could not agree on his fate and attempts to reach a compromise failed.

Rep. Magee Is Saving $4500 Expense Cash

Representative Magee, (D., Mo.) said yesterday he believed in practicing economy in his own office.

He told a reporter he expects to turn back to the treasury approximately $4500 of the amount allowed for his office expenses this year.

Of some $12,500 allowance for clerk hire, he plans to return $4125, he said. He is given $500 for official telegrams and long-distance calls and he will use only $100 of that amount, barring unforseen developments, he added.

FBI Agents Halt Talks With Fuchs; Returning to U. S.

London, June 2 (U.P.).—Two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who came to London to question Dr. Klaus Emil Fuchs, atomic spy, left by plane for New York tonight with information which may lead to the arrest of spy suspects in the United States.

Hugh Clegg, assistant FBI director, and Special Agent Robert Lamphere spent two weeks questioning Fuchs in Wormwood Scrubs prison, where he is starting a 14-year sentence.

The two agents showed Fuchs photographs and motion pictures of persons on the FBI suspect list in the United States. Fuchs is understood to have talked freely and to have provided leads on a number of persons. He is reported to have identiled contracts, whose names he never knew, by means of the films.

Racial Accord Urged At Methodist Meeting

By Martha J. Hall
Post Reporter

Westminster, Md., June 2.—Methodist ministers were urged today to get better acquainted with Negro Methodist ministers in their communities.

The suggestion was one of two made by the Social Projects Committee of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Church meeting at Western Maryland College as a means of fostering better relations between Negro and white Methodists.

Informal meetings and training courses with teachers and leaders of the Negro churches were also suggested.

Such assistance to Negro churches should be made only with mutual agreement and "should be given in brotherly and not a paternalistic manner," the committee report said.

The 700 delegates attending the conference unanimously adopted a resolution opposing appointment of a United States representative to the Vatican.

Minimum salaries for ministers in the conference were announced at the meeting.

For married ministers the minimum is $2402, an increase of $47 over last year's salary. For unmarried ministers, the rate is $2055, an increase of $43. In addition, a house is supplied each pastor.

Supply pastors (retired men, or those who are licensed preachers but do not have full educational qualifications) will receive $2055 if married, and $1852 if unmarried.

In cases where a church is unable to pay the minimum, conference funds up to $600 will be allotted to the church to pay the salaries.

Eight clergymen were admitted to full membership in the conference after completing two-year trial periods. Greater Washington men in the list included the Rev. Edward B. Lewis, pastor of Union Church, 814 20th st. nw., and the Rev. Warren A. Firth, pastor of the Hollywood, Md., church.

Admitted on trial were the Rev. John W. Kuschel, who has been serving as an assistant at Calvary Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw., and the Rev. Edwin H. Langrall, a recent graduate of Duke University and the son of the Rev. O. Bryan Langrall, pastor of Francis Asbury Church, 3146 16th st. nw.

Attendance Gains At Army Services, Chaplains Report

Increased attendance at services at Army chapels in the last four months of 1949 is shown in figures released by the office of the Chief of Army Chaplains yesterday.

Total attendance at services conducted by Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish chaplains rose from 455,388 in September to a peak of 617,302 in December, 1949.

Preliminary reports for the first two months of 1950 show attendance well over the 500,000 mark. More than 560,000 were present at services in January and during February, which had four Sundays, 543,576 went to chapel.

Unitarian

ARE YOU INTERESTED
in a mature religion? There are millions of Unitarians in America, but not in Unitarian churches. There are millions of Unitarians who do not know that such a Church exists. We in the Unitarian Church of Arlington, Va., are bound together, not by a set of beliefs, but by a common motive: to develop to the utmost our own lives, and the common life of mankind. Thus we place character before creed and reason before ritual. Ours is the faith behind freedom, a religion that begins in reality and ends in reverence. We invite you to come and grow with us.

Unions at Odds

Enka Strike Peace Move Is Suspended

Atlanta, June 2 (AP).—An effort to conciliate issues in a militia-patrolled textile strike at Morristown, Tenn., failed today after the AFL textile union challenged the right of the CIO's striking textile union to represent workers at the American Enka Corp., Tennessee rayon plant.

Enka officials told the Federal mediation and conciliation service that they were fearful of running into unfair labor charges if they negotiated with the CIO in the face of the AFL challenge. Consequently, said Regional Director William S. Pierce, there was nothing for the conciliation service to do but adjourn tthe session "subject to renewal when the situation is clarified."

The Enka Corp. stand drew criticism from CIO spokesmen. H. S. Williams, the CIO's Tennessee textile union director, charged Enka with breaking faith and "seeking an unholy alliance with a small insignificant union called the United Textile Workers (AFL)."

Joe Jacobs of Atlanta, Southern director of the AFL's TWU, said that within 10 days allowed by NLRB rules the TWU will petition for a bargaining representation election t the Enka plant.

Today's conciliation sessions were punctuated by new charges of fist-swinging violence at the strike scene.

The union in telegrams to Gov. Gordon Browning at Nashville protested that four National Guardsmen called union member W. O. Grubb from a cafe last night and struck him three times in the face. They chtarged that Grubb is the fifth or sixth unionist to be manhandled since the militia arrived on the scene on the Governor's orders.

The union walked out March 28 in a demand for wage increases and other benefits equivalent to a 23 cents an hour. The company has offered raises and other benefits equal to 10 cents an hour, leaving a 13-cent difference to be resolved.

Settlement of the five-week strike of AFL teletype operators against the United Press, on the basis of a $2.21-a-week general wage increase, was announced yesterday in New York.

The Commercial Telegraphers Union said its 265 striking teletype and maintenance men would go back to work at midnight tonight.

The settlement includes the following provisions:

$2.21-a-week pay raise (the telegraphers had asked for $5.50); $2 a week additional in hospital insurance, or cash for those already buying the insurance; reinstatement of the union shop; no changes in the wording of the contract, but clarifications agreed to; night pay differential for those assigned to duty before 7 a. m. or working beyond 7 p. m.

Base pay when the strike began, five weeks ago, was $90 for a 37½-hour week. The United Press stated that the average earnings of the strikers, however, were $107 a week.

The union set up picket lines at all UP domestic bureaus, and also picketed some of the UP teletype clients. Locally the newspapers, radio stations, and White House were picketed by the union members, who urged that the wire service be discontinued for the duration of the strike.

United Press continued its news transmission, during the strike, with supervisory employes and some nonunion operators at the machines.

Cincinnati Building Work Is Suspended

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 2 (U.P.).—A strike of 2500 members of the Hod-carriers' and Laborers' Union (AFL) halted all major construction in the Cincinnati area today.

The laborers walked out to enforce demands for a 12½ cent hourly wage increase and 5500 other building trades workers were expected to honor their picket lines.

Management offered the union an "average" pay increase based on wage hikes granted 17 building crafts last year. The union previously had demanded a 25-cent an hour increase, but later scaled the figured down.

The workers went on strike after their old contract expired last midnight.

Loses Purse Stowed in Trash

The Washington Post

GUYLENE LOVE, 21, of 414 Hume ave., Alexandria, Va., a typist at the Atlas Finance Co., 801 10th st. nw., couldn't jam her huge purse into a desk drawer so she casually placed it in a trash basket. She was hard at work when the trash collector called. Police radio cars located the truck, escorted the driver to the dump. The purse was found, but a wallet with $13 or $15 was missing. "The wallet must have fallen out or something, because the pocketbook catch was loose," moaned Miss Love

Mother of 8 To Get Degree From Md. U.

Mrs. Florence L. Duke of Clinton, Md., doesn't believe in letting her homemaking chores interfere with her desire to further her education.

On June 10, the 51-year-old mother of eight and part-time music teacher will graduate—with honors—from the college of education at the University of Maryland.

Besides keeping up with her housework and giving music lessons, which have helped finance her college training, she has found time to become one of the most active students in her class. She has edited the campus French paper and has been elected to two honorary societies, Phi Alpha Theta and Phi Kappa Phi.

Since entering the university, she has commuted daily from her home, more than 20 miles south of College Park and about seven miles below the District.

Of her eight children, one of whom was killed in World War II, three were graduated from the university. Two sons are enrolled there now and three other children plan to become Maryland students.

So far, she has been unable to induce her husband, J. Paul Duke, to matriculate.

Mrs. Duke was graduated from a convent in Louisiana 30 years ago, taught school for one year and moved to Maryland in 1921. Before enrolling at the university in 1947, she taught school for about 2½ years under a wartime teachers' certificate.

Still not satisfied with her formal education, she plans to "teach a few years" and then return to the university to obtain her master's degree, she said yesterday.

Court Studies Motion to Drop Poll-Tax Suit

A motion to dismiss the suit of an Arlington woman claiming the right to register and vote without paying the Virginia poll tax was taken under advisement yesterday by Judge Albert V. Bryan in the Alexandria Federal District Court.

Judge Bryan said the case might have to be decided by a three-judge court because it involves injunctions asked under a contention that the State poll tax provisions are constitutional.

The suit was brought by Mrs. Jessie Butler, 55, of Halls Hill, Arlington, against Mrs. Mary A. Thompson, Arlington registrar of voters, three election precinct judges and the State Board of Elections. Mrs. Butler tried to register December 15, 1945, and filed suit shortly afterward.

Mrs. Butler also seeks $5000 punitive damages from Mrs. Thompson. She asks that Mrs. Thompson be compelled to register her and that the State and county officials be ordered to permit her to register and vote.

With State Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., present at the hearing, Assistant Attorney General Walter E. Rogers argued on behalf of the election officials that the suit should be dismissed because the Federal Court does not have the power to decide a State election issue.

Attorney John W. Jackson, representing Mrs. Thompson, said the comolaint is a "cursory essay on election laws with no charges in it."

Attorney John Locke Green, counsel for the plaintiff, contended that the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting is unconstitutional under the Fifteenth amendment, the Virginia State Constitution of 1867 and the 1870 Act of Congress giving the State congressional representation.

Judge Bryan, who said the only question at issue seemed to be the constitutionality of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting, told the parties they may present opinions within 10 days on whether the dismissal motion would have to be decided by a three-judge court.

If he decides a three-judge decision is not necessary, he will rule on the motion, he said. Otherwise, another hearing will be held for arguments before three judges.

Bus Hearings Will Continue

The District Public Utilities Commission yesterday held its sixth hearing—and scheduled another for June 9—on the question of extending two Capital Transit Co. bus routes near Fairfax Village.

The Washington, Marlboro and Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., has contended it would suffer an annual loss of $16,000 on its Pennsylvania ave. lines if the CTC service were extended up Alabama ave. se. to Pennsylvania ave.

At yesterday's session, PUC Counsel Lloyd B. Harrison sought to show that WM&A's survey, from which the loss was calculated, was not accurate. He said PUC witnesses will deal with the survey in direct testimony June 9.

The extension of Capital Transit's C-2 and W-4 lines was ordered last year by the PUC on the ground the public needed the additional service. At the request of WM&A, District Court sent the case back for further hearing.

Southwest Churches Plan Hymn-Sing

Several Southwest section churches will hold "an old-fashioned hymn sing" tonight at 7:30 at the Fifth Baptist Church, 609 E st. sw. Two pianos, a pipe organ and an orchestra will accompany the singing.

The program will also include music by a choir, male quartet, vocalists and instrumentalists. The public is invited.

Riders to Fight Decision on Transit Radio

District Court Judge Edward A. Tamm's ruling Thursday that radio transmission in streetcars and buses here does not violate any rights was greeted yesterday with both criticism and approval.

The Transit Riders Association announced it will take its fight "buscasting" to the United States Court of Appeals. At the same time, the National Citizens Committee Against Forced Listening and Forced Reading criticized the ruling on the ground that "no broadcaster has the right to force the hearing of what he aurally publishes."

In another corner the Transit Riders Favoring Radio indorsed the court decision as consonant with "the inherent principle of freedom of the air," and hailed the installation of radio receivers in buses and streetcars as valuable to civilian defense.

Bar Unit Negro Ban Extended

Members of the District Bar Association have voted, 673 to 614, against amending the by-laws to permit admission of Negroes.

The vote in the referendum, which was by sealed ballot, was announced at yesterday's meeting of the association's board of directors. A report will be made at the association's annual meeting at the Mayflower Hotel June 13 at 8 p. m.

A total of 1297 of the 2172 voting members took part in the mail referendum.

The voting was undertaken after a large group of members circulated petitions calling for the by-laws change. This was the first referendum taken on the subject here.

FHA to Keep Rent Curbs in Va. Projects

Rent controls go off in nearby Virginia on June 25, but occupants of 11 apartment projects that have been under controls they may still be protected from excessive boosts.

The rescuer is the Federal Housing Administration which has authority over the rents charged by developments constructed under rent control whose mortgages it has insured.

No change may be made in the rental schedules of these without the FHA's approval, Thomas C. Barringer, director of the FHA District Insuring Office said yesterday.

The ending of rent control in Virginia will return the 11 projects to the same status as other projects under FHA whose rents are supervised by the agency. These include Shirley-Duke and Jefferson Village apartments, which were never under rent control.

Concerning the 11 projects, the District Insuring Office will look with favor on requests to "equalize" rents where some tenants have voluntarily agreed in the past to hikes up to 15 percent and others have not. But even these will come under close scrutiny to determine whether the boost will give the owner more than a 6½-percent net return on a project's estimated replacement cost.

In order to raise rents, development operators will have to prove increases in operating expenses and taxes above the amounts originally estimated to the FHA in asking for the mortgage insurance.

NLRB Bars Worker's Lies

A union employe's right to free speech does not include the license to lie about the company in order to injure the employer, a National Labor Relations Board examiner held yesterday.

Trial Examiner Ralph Winkler, in vigorous, clearcut language, ruled that the Electronics Equipment Co. of Brooklyn, had legally discharged Charles Penchansky, a shop steward for the Wholesale & Warehouse Union Local 65 (unaffiliated).

The steward had filed unfair labor practice charges against the company on the ground that he had been fired because of his union activity.

The trial examiner found that the shop steward and a group of fellow employes had circularized a letter to customers of the firm urging the clients to boycott Electronics Equipment until Local 65 was recognized as the bargaining representative for the company.

135 Shriners To Be Initiated

Approximately 135 new Shriners will be initiated at a late spring ceremonial at Uline Arena, 3d and M sts. ne., this afternoon.

The class of neophytes is named in honor of Ernest W. Snoots, who is celebrating his silver anniversary as director of stunts for Almas Temple, 1315 K st. ne.

The neophites will leave Almas Temple at 2:30 p. m. and cling to a long rope as they march to the arena to "cross the hot sands." They will be guarded by the red-fezzed members of the organization, with Clarence McCune, acting as parade marshal.

Behind the potentate, Julius B. Gay, will be the chief rabban, Dr. William J. B. Orr and other members of the divan, including Walter W. Hubbard, who will be master of ceremonies.

The line of march will be: from Almas Temple west on K st., north on 9th st., and along M st. to the arena.

'Ghost' Mine Towns Feared Due to Dumping of Foreign Oil

An Administration foreign policy leader on Capitol Hill yesterday joined the parade of witnesses appearing before Senate and House committees to demand a halt to the "dumping" of cheap foreign oil into the American industrial power and heating market.

Representative John Kee (D., W. Va.) told a Senate Labor subcommittee he favored boosting the tariff on oil from 10½ cents a barrel to $1.05 a barrel, and even more if necessary to halt the inflow of the cheap petroleum.

The West Virginian said he'd always been opposed to high tariffs, but now felt there was no other remedy to halt the increasing unemployment among the coal miners of his State.

Meanwhile, Tom Kennedy, vice president of the United Mine Workers, appeared before a House Labor subcommittee and said that since the start of 1949, at least 177 mines have been abandoned or closed, and nearly 17,000 soft coal miners laid off, due to the oil imports taking over former users of coal.

He warned that "ghost towns" would spring up through the coal country if the "dumping" of the cheap foreign oil were not prohibited or limited.

The oil imports were also attacked yesterday before one or the other of the committees by Frank W. Earnest, jr., president, Anthracite Institute; T. F. Hodge, independent oil producer, Jackson, Miss.; Representative Carl D. Perkins (D., Ky.); Representative Wint Smith (R., Kans.); Representative Ed Gossett (D., Tex.); Charles D. K. Devall, publisher, Kilgore (Tex.) News Herald; Amon G. Carter, president, Fort Worth (Tex.), Star Telegram.

Nation's Headliners Tee Off Today in Celebrities

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THEY'RE TEEING-OFF today at 12 noon in the goldarndest money-making golf tournament of 'em all—this National Celebrities whingding that will produce about a $30,000 kitty for the purchase of balls, bats and other equipment calculated to take the kids out of the alleys and onto the playgrounds.

The profit is possible because the Nation's big-shot names across the breadth of our land are taking time out to show their golf skill or lack of it, at the Army Navy Country Club, and paying their own expenses.

POVICH

Ben Hogan is passing up exhibition dates that would net him $1000 a day. Cabinet officers, six of them, needed no urging to join the cause. Bob Hope had to reshuffle his whole broadcasting time-table to keep his date on the first tee, and do a free show tonight at the Armory.

This is the fourth year of the Celebrities Tournament, the favorite project of The Washington Post which has helped to raise $60,000 for the kids from the previous three tourneys. The Post has learned that Celebrities are the nicest people.

SUPREME COURT Justice Tom Clark who originated the tournament when he was the Attorney General, has been sneaking some private lessons in an effort to avoid any more embarrassment, on the first tee.

It was last year in the Celebrities Tournament that Justice Clark addressed the ball and then swung—a clean and vigorous miss. That's when Harry Wismer wowed the gallery with his comment on the first-tee loud speaker: "Sorry, Mr. Attorney General. You could have called that a practice stroke, but you grunted."

W. O. (SPIKE) BRIGGS, Jr., heir-apparent to the ownership of the Detroit Tigers and the Briggs Body Works, will be making his debut in the Celebs tournament. Young Briggs is no stranger to Washington, and achieved some fame in his student days at Georgetown University. Too much fame, in fact. So vigorous were his contributions to the Hoya, student newspaper, he was kicked off the editorial board.

BOB HOPE'S appearance in the tournament is by special courtesy of Mr. John Hancock. Hope's radio commitments clashed directly with the tournament schedule and only by transcribing portions of his weekly show could he make it. It required the intercession of Mr. Honcock, chairman of the board of Lever Brothers, to give Hope the green light.

The girl golfers will be leveling in this year's tournament. They have a new title to win. The Women's Professional Golf Association, mentored by Freddy Corcoran, has designated the Celebrities tournament as a fixture on their circuit, and are recognizing it as an official championship.

THAT ANYTHING can happen in a Celebrities tournament was evidenced last year when Jane Russell made her appearance on the first tee without a sweater—the biggest upset in tournament history.

THE ENTRANTS with the most Celeb tournament experience under their bests are Senator Scott Lucas, Democratic majority leader, and Del Webb, owner of the Yankees. They are four-year veterans.

WHEN CONGRESSMAN GEORGE SMATHERS, soon-to-be Senator from Florida, walks on the first tee, Master of Ceremonies Harry Wismer won't have to ask "Who's that?" He'll recognize Smathers as his old teammate at the University of Florida where Wismer quarterbacked the varsity.

BOB CONSIDINE, who will tee off in the foursome with Gene Sarazen, Congressman Smathers and Secretary of War Frank Pace, was greeted by Sarazen in their hotel last night and given a copy of Gene's new book "Thirty Years of Championship Golf." Author Considine feigned displeasure, telling Sarazen, "Hey, stay out of my racket."

JIMMY NICHOLS, who will give a 15-minute shot-making exhibition at 11:30 a. m., doesn't have to contend with the evils of getting too much right hand into his wallops, he says. The amazing Mr. Nichols' right sleeve is empty.

AT 12:24 p. m., a man who had considerable to do with winning the last war will tee off. He's Vice Admiral John L. Hall, who put two million troops ashore on the beaches in Africa, Italy, Normandy and Okinawa, and had plans for Japan proper when the Nips decided to call the whole thing off.

CLARENCE FRANCIS, as chairman of the board of General Food Corp., may be one of the busiest men in the country but he somehow always finds time to do a public service. He is flying down in his private Grumman amphibian on such a tight schedule that he flies right back to New Jersey after the tournament Sunday night.

THREE OF THE CELEBRITIES PRACTICE AT ARMY NAVY CLUB FOR TODAY'S NATIONAL CELEBRITIES TOURNAMENT

Tournament, Expected to Net $30,000 For Kids

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

At noon today, fame goes on parade—again. Once more the National Celebrities Tournament calls America's headline personalities to the first tee, to whack away at golf balls and juvenile delinquency.

It's the fourth annual Celebs Tournament sponsored by The Washington Post to better the lot of underprivileged kids.

Name your celebrity and he's doubtless in the tournament, because more than 90 top-bracket figures of Government, the stage, radio, and sports will tee off in what is a veritable two-day carnival for autograph seekers, camera fiends and hero worship ers.

They will tee off in glittering procession at the Army Navy Country Club—Ben Hogan, Bob Hope, Arthur Godfrey, five Cabinet officers, four generals, an admiral, Milton Berle and Danny Kaye, to cite only a few.

And tonight, at the National Guard Armory, they'll assemble again, some of 'em on stage, for the Bob Hope Show at 8:30 o'clock, another tournament feature that will help to raise the $30,000 that is the tournament goal.

Wismer Starts 21 Foursomes

In all, 21 foursomes will perform for the gallery, with Harry Wismer again the first-tee master of ceremonies, after Attorney General J. Howard McGrath delivers special citations to a special trio of contestants.

McGrath will have a special award for Golfer Hogan, a Department of Justice tribute to him for his courageous come-back after his near death in an automobile accident a year ago. He will make awards, too, to Jim Thorpe and Babe Zaharias, recently voted by the Associated Press as the top athletes of the past half-century.

Each day's play will see the golfers going 18 holes, with Bob Hope defending the title he won from Bing Crosby in the amateur division last year, and Hogan, Gene Sarazen, George Fazio, Lew Worsham, Allan Burton, Jimmy Mumson, Henry Picard, Fred McLeod and Joe Lally seeking the pro class crown taken in 1949 by Sammy Snead.

Tickets Available at Course

Special facilities for the sale of tournament tickets at the Army Navy Club in Arlington, Va., have been set for the gallery today. Tickets may be purchased at $3.60 for both days of play $2.40 for either single day.

Tickets for the Bob Hope Show tonight will remain on sale in The Washington Post lobby until 6 p. m., after which they may be obtained at the Armory ticket windows.

Two special exhibitions will precede the start of play. At 11:30 a. m., Jimmy Nichols, famed one-armed wizard, will demonstrate his repertoire of shots from the first tee. At 11:45 o'clock, Olympic Rifle Champion Arthur Cook will exhibit a golfing pistol that can drive a ball 500 yards.

The United States Golf Association might frown on what could be called a lack of golf etiquette, but the Celebs tournament knows no restriction against the carrying of cameras on the course. And the Celebrities will rally after relieving Widmar, who was yanked when he had a six-run lead.

Harry Dorish, Red Sox castoff, not only won his first game of the season for the Browns in the nightcap with a seven-hit performance, but also drove in a pair of runs with doubles, and scored one himself by stealing home.

The double defeat, witnessed by 11,339 fans, dropped the Nats below the .500 mark for the first time since late April. It also gave the Browns a three-game winning streak, their longest of the season.

Dente opened the gates for the Browns in the opener when he made a two-base wild throw on Bill De Mars' grounder. Hudson got the next two batters out, but before he could retire the side, the Browns jumped into a 4-0 advantage. Coleman singled, Lenhardt doubled, Arft followed with the first of his five hits and Noren dropped an easy throw to produce the lead.

The Nats got two of those back in the second on Noren's single and triples by Dente and Al Evans, but the Browns retaliated with three more runs in the fifth to zoom into a 7-2 lead. Cass Michael's double and Noren's second single delivered two more runs for the Nats in the same inning, but once again the Browns kept their distance, this time in the seventh when they poured over three more runs.

The last time the Nats saw home plate was in the seventh inning when Johnny Ostrowski scored as Michaels rapped into a double play with the bases loaded. Widmar was relieved when he walked Gil Coan to fill the bases and Fannin came in to choke off the rally.

The Browns rearranged their batting order for the second game and the immediate rsult was slightly different. Instead of scoring four runs in their first time at bat, as they did in the opener, they only got three.

Hittle Has Little

The damage was done at the expense of Lloyd Hittle, who was not exactly magnificent. He pitched five-run, nine-hit ball before Manager Bucky Harris permitted Dick Weik to make his second appearance of the evening in the fifth inning.

Weik inherited a 5-1 deficit when he took over, and he promptly upped the Browns' advantage to 8-1 in the fifth. One of the three runs was a double steal with Pitcher Harry Dorish coming home on the payoff end.

After that fifth inning, things were comparatively quiet until the eighth when Weik was literally knocked out of the box. A fierce line drive by Friend hit him above the knee on his left leg, driving in the Browns' ninth run and sending Weik sprawling on the grass in heavy pain.

He got up after a few minutes, but had to be helped to the dressing room.

Irv Noren, whose single figured in the second Washington run in the sixth, knocked in tally No. 3 for the Nats with a triple to deep right center in the eighth inning. It turned out to be the Nats' last run.

IN SHORT . . . The Nats' two AWOL players, Cass Michaels and Bob Kuzva, checked in at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, shortly before Johnny Ostrowski, who had permission to report a day late, arrived . . . Michaels and Kuzava explained that they drove their families from Chicago to Detroit and Wyandotte, Mich., their respective homes, hence their tardiness . . . Griffith was ready to slap a fine on them at noon when he received a wire from them saying there were flying in . . .

Scarborough, Robinson Beat Yanks

Eddie's Hit In 12th Wins For Chisox

New York, June 2.—Ray Scarborough and Eddie Robinson, ex-Nats making their first appearance together in Chicago White Sox uniforms, teamed to hang a 6-5 defeat on the New York Yankees in a 12-inning thriller this afternoon.

Robinson's big bat was a potent factor. He smashed a double to deep leftfield in the twelfth to drive in the winning runs.

The big first sacker also was prominent in the Sox's three-run fourth inning that sent the visitors ahead 4-2. His contribution was a line-drive homer.

Scarborough, making his first start since figuring in the early-week three-for-three player deal with the Senators, went the route as did Vic Raschi of the Yankees. He allowed 13 hits to Raschi's nine and pitched his way out of several deep holes.

The Yankees came back fighting after the Sox took the lead in the twelfth. Tom Henrich, limped to the plate as a pinch-hitter and slammed out a homer and Cliff Mapes followed with a double to put the tying run on second. However, Scarborough once more was equal to the occasion and got the side out without further damage.

Spencer's 72 Wins Medal At Hot Springs

Hot Springs, Va., June 2 (AP).—Wynsol Spencer, arriving here only a few minutes before he teed off after the long drive from his home at Newport News, Va., fired a one-over-par 72 today to take medalist honors in the forty ninth Middle Atlantic Men's Amateur Golf Championship Tournament.

Deadlocked for second, three strokes behind Spencer, were Jim Wilson, an Air Force officer from Washington, and Walter Panowski, Baltimore physician, who posted 75s.

Bunched with 76s were Defending Champion Ralph Bogart of Washington, Eddie Johnston of Baltimore, George Fulton, jr., of Roanoke, Va., and Bobby Brownell of Washington, who won the Middle Atlantic crown in 1941 and 1947.

Meanwhile, things ran true to the script in the Middle Atlantic women's tournament being played over the par 76, 6016-yard Homestead course on the opposite side of this resort village.

Defending Champion Mary Ann Downey and Mrs. Maurice Glick, both of Baltimore, and Sydney Elliott of Charlottesville, and Mrs. A. W. Cook, sr., of Logan, W. Va., advanced into tomorrow's semi-finals without too much effort.

Miss Downey, shooting much better golf than yesterday when she scored an 83, trimmed Mrs. Sammy Snead of Hot Springs, wife of golf's current leading money-earner, 4 and 3. Mrs. Glick turned in the day's most convincing score when she trounced Mrs. William Pollard of Charlottesville, 8 and 7.

Miss Elliott, Virginia women's champion from Charlottesville, turned back Mrs. C. G. Quesenbery, also of Charlottesville, 6 and 5. Mrs. Cook downed Mrs. Marjorie Alexander of Washington, 4 and 3.

DEAR FOLKS: At Delaware

This track is taking no chances on "ringers"—horses running under wrong identification. All thoroughbreds have lip tattoo numbers and these are checked each morning at inspection time and again in the paddock. Pilaster, one of Maryland's most popular horses, is in training here and doing well after injuring an ankle. Friend Yancey Christmas, the owner-trainer, is seriously ill at his home in Marlboro, Md. He had resumed training after having been ailing but suffered a relapse a few days ago. Although the record books say that the $3855 daily double was a new high for Hagerstown, I recall one that paid more than $4000 at that track. It was on opening day about 10 years ago and the sheriff had one of the tickets. The number was either 7 and 8 or 8 and 7. Anybody remember? BILL

Two Horses In Spill at Delaware

Delaware Park, Del., June 2.—Richard Rozelle, Owego, N. Y., rider, was removed to the Delaware Hospital in a critical condition after suffering serious injuries in the running of the featured Kirkwood Purse this afternoon. The 22-year-old booter suffered a depressed fractured skull and internal injuries when his mount, Raise You, went down in a heap as she ran up on the heels of New Oxford.

Dr. C. Leith Munson, track surgeon, was on hand to receive Rozelle at the hospital after he had been given first aid by Drs. Leon Peck and E. G. Laird, physicians in attendance at the track.

Rozelle underwent a head operation and his condition at midnight was termed critical.

Raise You fell between flying horses and, as Rozelle lay prostrate on the ground, Junior Nurse unable to avoid the stretched out jockey and horse, tumbled over the pair.

Apprentice Council Hits GI Training In New Blast

Only One Graduate In 20 Can Find Job Schools Prepared Him For, It Says

The District Appenticeship Council once again lambasted private trade schools here, asserting they were leading veteran trainees up a blind alley.

Reiterating its charge that only one trainee in 20 can be placed in the field for which he is trained, the council reported it has been swamped with calls from trade school graduates who can't find employment.

The Federal Diary starts on Page 1 today.

In one trade, with a turnover of five or six jobs a year, some 600 veterans are undergoing training, the council stated.

"That means enough veterans are being trained in this trade to supply Washington for 100 years," the council stated is a release.

The council deplored the advertising of some schools that paint a glowing picture of job possibilities in fields virtually closed. It urged veterans to investigate the job situation before enrolling.

Miss Bell Pleads Guilty in Fatal Traffic Accident

Vernetta D. Bell, 34, 2209 G st., ne., yesterday pleaded guilty in Municipal Court to negligent homicide, in the May 6 traffic death of Mrs. Nellie Allene Strother, 40, on the front porch of her home, 723 21st st. ne.

At the same time, similar charges against Mallie Livingston, 33, 1326 B st. ne., who was in the car with Miss Bell at the time, were nolle prossed.

Miss Bell had a beginner's permit and was driving a car for the second time at the time of the accident. She told police that her foot struck the accelerator instead of the brake as she rounded a corner. The car hurdled the curb and crushed Mrs. Strother.

Bond Set At $20,000 In Holdup

Rebuking authorities elsewhere who set low bond, United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence yesterday set a high bond hurdle—$20,000—for a $9 robbery suspect.

"Now let's see you try to jump this bond," said Lawrence to the suspect, Thomas J. Auflick, 34, of Columbus, Ohio, who had admitted jumping $1000 bond on an Ohio robbery charge.

Auflick was held for the grand jury. Orville L. Robert, Central Intelligence Agency pay clerk, of Brookmont, Md., charged Auflick with engaging him in conversation about the weather, then robbing him at gunpoint of $9 in the washroom of the Washington Building, 15th st. and New York ave. nw., about 9:30 p. m. Thursday.

Auflick admitted he held up Roberts, but claimed he had been provoked.

When Auflick admitting having jumped $1000 bond in Ohio on a robbery charge, Commissioner Lawrence, in setting high bond, commented: "That's the trouble with setting low bond—they make it easy for you to jump it and then go out and commit the same offense again."

ICC Postpones 5c Fare Boost On AB&W

A fare boost of 5 cents a zone slated for the Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington Transit Co. on its routes between Washington and nearby Virginia points was suspended yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission pending a hearing.

The increase, which would otherwise have gone into effect Sunday, was delayed at the request of the Arlington County Board and protesting suburban riders until January 3, 1951. A hearing date is to be set.

Meanwhile, an intrastate fare increase by the A. B. & W., granted by the Virginia State Corporation Commission, will go into effect at 5 a. m. Sunday.

Under this fare rise, passengers will pay a flat fve cents more for all rides within Virginia, with one exception. In the Alexandria and Arlington metropolitan areas, the company is setting up a new one-zone fare of 15 cents cash or a 12½ cent token. Four tokens will be sold for 50 cents.

The suspension of the interstate rate increase does not affect A. B. & W.'s request for a 6-cent boost in its share of the fares between the District, the Pentagon and other Government installations in Virginia.

Death Car Driver Faces 2½ Years

Jury Recommends Sentence for Ford, Operator of Auto That Killed Boy, 12

James Walter Ford, 37, has been convicted of manslaughter in Arlington Circuit Court in the traffic death last January 27 of 12-year-old Fred Lehman.

Ford, of 337 I st. sw., was found guilty Thursday of the boy's death. A 12-man jury deliberated two hours before recommending a 2½-year prison sentence for the defendant.

The Lehman boy was struck in the eastbound lane of Lee blvd.

The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard W. Lehman, 117 S. Aberdeen st., Arlington.

Judge R. T. Wilson of Petersburg, Va., substituting for an absent Arlington Circuit Court judge, referred Ford's case to the probation officer before imposition of sentence.

Sterling Lee Acquitted Of Manslaughter Charge

Sterling Lee, 26-year-old son of the president of the Montgomery County Council, last night was acquitted of a manslaughter charge in Elkridge Trial Court by Judge J. Lewis Thompson.

Lee appeared in connection with the death Wednesday night of Charles Benton, about 75, who was struck by the car driven by Lee on Route 1 near Dorsey, Md.

Witnesses testified Lee pulled to the right of the road and stopped immediately, while an oncoming truck and car ran over Benton's body. Neither of the last two vehicles stopped.

Judge Thompson said he found no indication of negligence by Lee, son of Frederic P. Lee, and added he was unable to determine which vehicle caused Benton's death.

Truck Driver Gets 6 Months as Reckless

The driver of a truck in which 20 high school student riders were injured when it collided with a W. M. and A. bus May 14 near Capitol Heights was given six months in the Maryland House of Correction yesterday. Sentence was imposed in Marlboro Police Court.

The driver, Allen Ross, 46, of 1405 Columbia st. nw., convicted of reckless driving, also was fined $25 for having no driver's license and $5 for having no registration card.

on the shoulders of his classmates to brandish aloft a huge blue-and-gold wooden anchor.

The speechmaking and the diploma handing-out over, the graduates sailed their white caps to Dahlgren's rafters in the traditional climax to the ceremonies, while perfumed June Week drags scrambled for them.

Penciled on the lids were the future addresses of the new officers—a broad invitation to correspondence. One that gave a detailed list of port-stops on the ex-midshipman's first cruise.

"This is a flying Saucer," added one hat.

"Please send cake and cookies to my plebe—he's had a tough year," said another, in sympathy for the underclassman who spit-and-polished his boots and sword.

The graduates, besieged by kissing mothers and sweethearts, trooped out singing lustily to the underclassmen:

We hate to leave you here,
We hate to leave you here,
We hope to hell you never get out,
We hate to leave you here.

And the underclassmen boomed back . . .

We hate to see you go,
We hate to see you go,
We hope to hell you never come back,
We hate to see you go.

The strains of Auld Lang Syne and of Dixie and Maryland, My Maryland, played by the Academy band, and the smell of gardenia corsages filled the air.

From the hall, the lowly plebes, singing their song of triumph, "'Taint No More Plebes," raced for Herndon Monument and pyramided Midshipman Frederick Graf of Bicknel, Ind., to the top.

When Graf placed his cap atop the 20-foot obelisk, tradition says, the plebes were immediately transformed into "Youngsters" or third-classmen : . . "'Taint No More Plebes. . . ."

Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of Naval operations, swore in 461 graduates as ensigns. There were separate swearing-in ceremonies later in Bancroft Hall for the 171 Air Force second lieutenants and 48 Marine Corps second looies. Ten men were graduated but not commissioned because of physical defects.

Johnson told the graduates going into the Air Force that the fact they are entering it by way of Annapolis instead of West Point will prove no bar to advancement.

"When the roll of air generals is called in 1980, I am confident that this graduating class will be well represented."

Noting that the Navy has successfully made many "revolutionary shifts," such as from sail to steam, he told the midshipmen that "no one doubts your ability to adjust yourself to atomic energy, jet power and guided missiles."

While hailing unification, the defense chief averred that we do not want a rubber-stamp unity.

"Unification of our armed forces is now a fact, and graduates of the Naval Academy are contributing whole-heartedly toward its full realization," he said.

"I am not prepared to say that all differences among the service men have been resolved or that none will ever arise again. In fact, toward that kind of unification none of us aspires.

"We appreciate that vigorous men with strong loyalties are bound to disagree on occasion, but we have a right as Americans to demand that ultimately, after adequate discussion, they will get together in the national interest and come to definite decisions that bind them all," he declared.

Unfication progress made in the past year, he asserted, "has exceeded our most sanguine expectations."

Vice Admiral H. W. Hill academy superintendent, introduced Johnson. The stage was loaded with civilian and officered brass of the Armed Forces.

American U. Breaks Ground Today for $225,000 Stadium

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

American University will break ground today for a $225,000 war memorial stadium and athletic center.

The school said the stadium, on the campus at Massachusetts and Nebraska aves. nw., will be made available to high schools.

To permit ready access to the stadium, the school said it will deed land to the city for a new street to flank the center.

The street, to be known as University ave., will connect Massachusetts ave. with Rockwood pkwy. and form a new western boundary for the campus.

The ceremony at 1:30 p. m. today will open commencement activities that will be climaxed Sunday night with the conferring of degrees on more than 500 graduates. Exercises will be held in the quadrangle at 8:15 p. m. In case of rain, the graduation will be moved into Clendenen Hall. The commencement address will be given by Charles F. Kettering, vice president in charge of research for General Motors Corp.

Baccalaureate services will be conducted by the Rev. Ralph Sockman, pastor of Christ Methodist Church, New York City, Sunday at 4:15 p. m.

Alumni will hold their annual meeting today with a dinner at 6 p. m. in Mary Graydon Hall. Miss Pauline Frederick, radio commentator and a 1932 graduate, will deliver the address and receive an alumni award.

President Paul F. Douglass yesterday described the athletic center as the first step in a five-year expansion program. A public affairs center at 19th and F sts. nw. and a fine arts center on the campus are to follow.

The athletic center will contain a 335-foot regulation field, a separate baseball diamond with stands, tennis and squash courts, a soccer field and a clubhouse.

Dr. Douglass said the center will be a memorial to men and women of the Red Cross, Navy and Coast Guard trained at the school during the war as well as to American University students who served in the armed forces.

A funds drive, under way for the past year, will be continued. The baseball diamond and field are expected to be completed by mid-autumn, Dr. Douglass said.

Goodloe Abortion Trial Scheduled Wednesday

Dr. William A. Goodloe, 53, of 1836 S st. nw., will be tried Wednesday in District Court on a charge of performing an abortion here.

Judge Jennings Bailey yesterday ordered that the case against Mrs. Alice L. Galusha, 26, of 1343 Clifton st. nw., charged with conspiring with Dr. Goodloe to bribe a Government witness in the case, be tried separately from the abortion charge. The severance was granted on motion of her attorney, Nicholas J. Chase.

Garage Operator Snarled Up In Maze of Parking Tickets

"Red" is going to have to find some place besides the alley behind his garage at 24 F st. ne. to park cars waiting for repairs, Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark F. King declared last night.

He backed up his words with a request for seven warrants against Samuel (Red) Gordon—six for illegally parking cars in the alley and another for leaving a tow crane there without license tags.

King's action adds misery to Gordon's already large pot of woe. Yesterday Gordon found Pvt. R. M. Hudlow of No. 1 had deposited four tickets for illegal parking of vehicles the night before in the alley.

Gordon said that in the five years he has occupied the garage, he and his fellow garage operators have regularly parked cars in the alley and periodically the police come through and deposit tickets. Yesterday there were about 20 in the alley.

Prosecutor King said he was taking the unusual action of asking for warrants against Gordon because other residents of the unit block of H st. ne. have complained that the practice hinders passage of fire trucks through the alley and that his cars tie up legal parking spaces in front of the garage for an illegal number of hours.

Conviction on the charges would make Gordon liable to fines up to $300, 10 days in jail or both, King said.

Mrs. Atwood Retires From Wage Board

Mrs. Weston Named To Succeed Her as Chairman on Her Recommendation

The District Commissioners yesterday accepted the resignation of Mrs. Albert W. Atwood as chairman of the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board.

Mrs. Weston

At the same time, on Mrs. Atwood's recommendation, the Commissioners appointed Mrs. Charles H. Weston as chairman and public representative on the three-member board, which serves without pay.

Mrs. Weston, sister of Charles G. Ross, the President's press secretary, has been active here in the child welfare work and in the League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Atwood, chairman of the board for the past seven and a half years, said she resigned the post to make way "for a younger person."

Under her chairmanship, the Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety Board revised the six minimum wage orders covering all women and children in private employment here. The board established during this period five industrial safety codes, covering 230,000 employes in private industry. The board also took action to recover $120,000 in pay due women and children under the local minimum wage law.

A mother of three children, and grandmother of five, Mrs. Atwood lives at 16 Observatory Circle nw. She is a member of the board of directors of the YWCA, and is president of the board of lady managers of the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital. Her husband is a National Geographic writer.

Mrs. Weston, also the mother of three children, lives at 4345 Hawthorne st. nw. Her husband is an attorney.

Peacemaker Slashed in Family Row

An off-duty fireman who tried to cool the heat of a family street-corner argument ended up last night in Casualty Hospital with severe slash wounds.

Pvt. James F. Jones, 29, of No. 3 Engine Co., was walking at Holbrook and Neale sts. ne., when he encountered a woman running and yelling for help.

Jones asked if he could help. Next thing he knew, Jones was in a melee with a penknife-wielding man during which he suffered wounds to the ear, neck, head, back and leg.

Jones was admitted to Casualty Hospital in undetermined condition. Joseph W. Kent, 20, of 816 51st st. ne., was treated for a right-hand cut, then charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

Police said Kent had been arguing with his estranged spouse, Mildred, 22, of 1332 Trinidad st. ne., when the fracas started. Pvt. Jones, who lives at 1300 Holbrook st. ne., is a Marine veteran who saw action in the Pacific.

Bus Driver Injured As Rider Hurls Bottle

A Capital Transit bus driver had six stitches taken in his scalp last night at Casualty Hospital after a passenger tossed a soft-drink bottle at him.

John Gay, 39, of 1549 35th st. nw., said the assailant got on at 14th and P sts. nw., argued about a pass, then alighted at 11th and P sts. nw. Picking up a bottle, the fare heaved it through the open door, hitting the driver in the head.

Police broadcast a lookout for a "drunk and nasty" medium brown-skinned Negro, 5 feet 11, 25 to 30 years old, wearing a maroon sports shirt and gray trousers.

Stabbing Victim In 'Fair' Condition; Stepfather Held

Harvey France, 21-year-old valet shop employe, was reported in fair condition last night at Prince Georges General Hospital with a stab wound in the chest, reportedly received during a family row Thursday night.

France was stabbed during an argument over money with his stepfather, Leonard DeLucia, 53, in the front yard of the DeLucia home at 4406 29th st., Mount Rainier, police said.

DeLucia was charged by Mount Rainier police with assault with intent to kill and released under $1000 bond for a hearing June 15 in Hyattsville Police Court.

France, who was discharged from the Army about eight months ago, had been working since then in his stepfather's valet shop at 2320 Wisconsin ave. nw.

Judge Plans No Scrapping Of Juvenile Court Unit

Advisory Committee Reported Ready To Discuss Two Resignations Soon

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Judge Edith H. Cockrill yesterday went on record as favoring a strong and independent advisory committee to the Juvenile Court.

In a conference with two representatives of the existing advisory committee, Judge Cockrill denied rumors that she intended to "scrap" the committee, which has been functioning since 1937 and has been operating under formal by-laws since 1944.

During the conference, Judge Cockrill did not go beyond her published statements regarding the resignation of the court's two top social workers, Miss Virginia Clary, director of social work, and Miss Clare Fagrie, chief supervisor. These resignations take effect on June 30. A joint statement attributed the resignation to differences over court administration and policies.

G. Howland Shaw, committee chairman, who with Roger Robb, local attorney, conferred with the judge yesterday, said that to his knowledge Judge Cockrill had not advised any member of the committee of differences with Miss Clary and Miss Fagrie before the resignations were submitted.

Successor Not Discussed

A successor to Miss Clary was not discussed by the conference participants.

Shaw said the resignations "undoubtedly" would be discussed when the full committee meets on Thursday.

Judge Cockrill yesterday again declined comment on the resignation of the two court officials. Her secretary said the judge was too busy to grant an interview.

The committee, which serves as a liaison group between the community and the Juvenile Court, was established because of the recognition of the "importance of a close gearing of the Juvenile Court functions with the total community needs and services."

Shaw said Judge Cockrill told them she wanted a strong advisory committee with a "positive pro-

Jobless Veteran Kills Self; Suffered From Nerve Disorder

A 24-year-old jobless veteran shot himself to death with a .45-caliber automatic, police reported yesterday.

The death of John Frank, jr., in his third-floor room at 1857 Park rd. nw. was ruled a suicide by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald.

Frank, who came from Martinsville, Va., had been receiving a $75 monthly pension for a nervous disorder, Capt. Jeremiah Flaherty, homicide squad chief, said. Uncashed checks were found in his room.

Frank was graduated from the Capital Radio Engineering Institute in February, 1949, then returned for a postgraduate course last April, according to police. He had not attended school since April 17.

He apparently shot himself sometime Thursday.

Funeral services were held in Hyattsville, Md., yesterday for Mrs. Elizabeth B. Jones, 83, for many years official genealogist for the Daughters of the American Revolution, who died Tuesday at her home in Templeton Manor, Md.

Mrs. Jones came to Washington more than 30 years ago. She lived with her son, William B. Jones, assistant to the chief auditor of the Justice Department, at 5422 58th ave., Templeton Manor.

She retired from the DAR in 1937 as a member of the Thomas Marshall chapter, but did special work for the society after that date.

Funeral services were held at Gasch's funeral home. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery, Bladensburg, Md.

Herbert Spencer Barber, internationally known entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, died Thursday night of a heart attack at his home, 644 6th st. ne.

Although he attended high school only two years, Mr. Barber later became one of the outstanding specialists in the study of beetles. He was consulted by entomology students throughout the world.

Mr. Barber

He was an authority on leaf beetles, seed beetles, and weevils, many of great importance in the agricultural economy. He made a point of contributing to the basic philosophy of many young entomologists.

Born in Yankton, S. Dak., in 1882, he was educated in the public schools of Orlando, Fla., and at Central High School here.

His childhood interest in insects caused him to consult the famous coleopeterist, Dr. E. A. Schwarz, and he then entered his life's work by becoming a preparer of insects at the National Museum. From 1908 until his death, he was a specialist of the division of insect identification of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

Mr. Barber traveled and collected insects in this country, Guatemala and Mexico, and became a student of many plants and animals. His associates said he was a skilled photographer, an expert rifle and sidearm marksman, and knew almost all of the woodland trails and waterways in the Washington area.

He was particularly interested in sharing his knowledge and love of the outdoors with the children of his associates, and often took them with him on his explorations here.

He was a member in the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Entomological Society of Washington, Washington Academy of Sciences, Biological Society of Washington, Washington Biological Field Club, and the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club.

Survivors include his former wife, Mrs. Vera Barber of Palo Alto, Calif.; his daughter, Miss Elsie Louise Barber of Palo Alto; a sister, Mrs. Harold L. Palmer, of 644 6th st. ne., and a brother, Victor S. Barber, of San Francisco.

Funeral services will be private.

The two advisory committee members indicated that they wanted to set up a program that would put members in closer contact with the actual work of the court.

Psychologists Can Aid World —Klineberg

Psychologists can help the politicians and economists smooth the way to better international relations, a New York psychologist declared here last night.

Dr. Otto Klineberg of Columbia University's department of psychology stressed the point in discussing the science's role in world problems.

He spoke in the Sternberg Auditorium at the Army Medical Center in the fifth and final lecture of the series on "Personality and Political Crisis," sponsored by the Washington School of Psychiatry.

Neglect of the psychological aspects of international relations, he said, leads to "a one-sided and distorted picture." Fortunately, he added, psychologists are giving more and more attention to international problems.

Among the psychological aspects being considered, he said, are "national images, or stereotypes," and "techniques of international conferences."

The former, Dr. Klineberg said, represent the "pictures" members of one nationality have of the members of other nationalities. Often such widely held stereotypes are "misconceptions which perpetuate misunderstandings," he said.

He praised the work of the Social Sciences Department of the United Nation's Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for its "significant attempt to obtain answers to these questions."

Ozaki Hopes To See Blooms When He's 100

Yukio Ozaki, 92-year-old Japanese statesman, said yesterday at the Library of Congress that when he is 100 he hopes to return here to see the Japanese cherry trees in bloom.

Ozaki, who as mayor of Tokyo in 1908 sent 3000 cherry trees here, said he had dedicated the first 100 years of his life to serving his country and his people, and thereafter would amuse himself. It was then, he said, that he would be back.

Ozaki, who as a member of the Japanese Diet for 60 years has a world record as a legislator, said the gift of cherry trees was made in the name of the people of Tokyo. But in spirit the trees were the gift of all the Japanese people in gratitude for President Theodore Roosevelt's help in ending the Russo-Japanese war of 1904-5, he said.

The famous Japanese liberal spoke at a lunch in the library's Whittall Pavilion marking the opening of an exhibit of his writings. His son, Yukiteru Ozaki, his daughter, Mrs. Yukika Soma, and his secretary and biographer, Hideo Isa, were present at the luncheon. Acting Librarian of Congress Verner Clapp and Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah), a former missionary in Japan, spoke.

The exhibit includes two tankas, or poems, by Ozaki and his political writings.

Attorney Sues To Remain in Country Club

In a legal move unprecedented in Montgomery County, and possibly all of Maryland, a Washington attorney has filed suit to restrain the Congressional Country Club from suspending his membership.

The suit, filed in Montgomery County Circuit Court by Bernard L. Eberts, 4613 Morgan dr., Chevy Chase Gardens, names the club, two of its officers and its board of governors as defendants. It asks the court to void the board's action in suspending him and to compel the club's officers and board to reinstate him "with all the privileges provided by the constitution and bylaws."

Eberts, through Attorney James H. Pugh of Rockville, said he was notified May 17 that he had been suspended for a six-month period beginning May 21. If the suspension is permitted to stand, he charged in his suit, "his financial and proprietory interest, his business and professional reputation and the social reputation of himself and his family are in danger of irreparable harm and injury."

According to Pugh, Eberts claimed he was suspended after a hearing before the board of governors merely because he filed a dissent to a committee report in which he recommended certain economies in the operation and maintenance of the club.

J. Mark Trice, secretary of the club, who was named as one of the defendants, said yesterday that the board preferred charges against Eberts because he failed to 'go through proper channels" in making his recommendations and distributed them among club members instead of taking them to the board. Trice said Eberts' report was "full of misstatements and inaccuracies which could have caused dissension and dissatisfaction among the club's members.

Clayton K. Watkins, clerk of the Circuit Court for 35 years, said it was the first case of its kind filed in the county to his knowledge. Eberts' attorney said he believed it was without precedent in the State.

AVC Presents Bill of Rights Awards to 4

Roger Baldwin, former executive secretary of the American Civil Liberties Union, and Elmer Davis, American Broadcasting commentator, were among four persons who received the American Veterans Committee's fourth annual Bill of Rights Awards last night.

Others were Emery Foster, chairman of the Washington chapter of the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice, and Dr. Paul Cooke, chairman of the AVC's Civil Rights Committee.

The awards were given at the AVC Clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw., sponsored by the AVC's Press-Radio Wing.

Baldwin in a talk said "free democracy" professed by the United States faces its toughest challenge in this era of "cold war conflict."

"The challenge to make good our professions of equality under the law to all persons remains to be fulfilled in civil rights, in fair play for organized labor and in our treatment of the Communist Party," Baldwin said.

National AVC Chairman Michael Straight made the presentation to Baldwin. Taft Feiman, chairman of the greater Washington area council, gave the awards to Foster and Cooke. Wadsworth Likely, chairman of the Press-Radio Wing, presented Davis with his award.

SERIOUS BUSINESS THIS GOLF: While 16-year-old Marlene Bauer watches intently, Alice tries for a perfect putt on the artificial green in Jelleff's, where the famous golfing sisters gave a joint golf demonstration and fashion show yesterday. Both are wearing two-piece Weathervane "golfer" costumes, in pink and natural waterproof rayon fabric. The girls are in town for the National Celebrities Tournament today and tomorrow at the Army Navy Country Club.

Glamour On The Greens

Bauers Model Smart Costumes

By Peggy Preston

"WE'RE supposed to be ladies, now. No more shorts on the golf course."

That was 22-year-old Alice Bauer talking—she of the mighty swing and diminutive figure. Sister Marlene, with all the dignity of her 16 years, nodded in silent agreement. They both teed off on a couple of cotton-filled plastic golf balls and whacked them straight into a rack full of clothes.

It was all highly irregular. Here were the two of them—golfdom's famed high-powered lassies—dressed in the latest fashion for the links. They were turned models, in fact, for a day, and what were they doing? Why, slamming away at golf balls, putting the little pellets into the cup, chipping them into each other's hats.

Wear Links Costumes

All this went on yesterday between 12 and 1 p. m. in the sportswear department of Jelleff's. A blanket of artificial grass subbed for a fairway and green, and a long rack of summer suits at the other end of the room stopped the fast-spinning balls.

Clad in their nifty Weathervane "golfer" costumes, designed by Jane Derby, the frolicking Bauer girls put on a combination fashion show-golf demonstration with the ease of veterans.

While a crowd of feminine admirers followed their every stroke, Alice and Marlene went through their paces like a couple of well-trained kittens. They grinned and teased one another, chatted amicably with bystanders, and readily gave away secrets of their respective games.

"Say, you know this is fun," allowed Alice, who with her more famous sister turned professional April 15, and is entering a whole new world of golfing activity. "I didn't think I'd have nerve enough to stand up before a crowd and give golf lessons. Figured I wouldn't know how to answer the questions. But it's easy!"

Modeling their "golfers" comes easy for both these little charmers. They're both "crazy" about clothes, and now that they are big-time pros they intend to wear only well tailored golfing togs. After hours, they go for frilly, feminine costumes—"Lots of chiffon, organza, high heels—that's for us."

Actually, by present-day standards, neither could be considered ideal models. Alice, who stands just 5 feet, 1½ inches, tips the scales at 100 pounds. Baby sister Marlene is an inch taller, but weighs considerably more.

"That's because she likes desserts, says Alice, gently teasing her sis. "I'm a milk and vegetable girl, myself."

Thrilled by Glamor Listing

Blue-eyed and blonde, Alice is the more talkative of the two, and because of her advanced age, a bit more sophisticated. That she has charm was proven this year when Harry Conover listed her as one of the 10 glamorous women athletes of the year.

"Was I thrilled?" exclaims Alice. "Well, gosh, what woman wouldn't be?"

Marlene, whose skill on the golf course caused her to be voted the outstanding woman athlete for 1950, tends to be quiet and reserved. Her most attractive feature is her eyes, a dark green-gray set deep under a pair of nicely arched eyebrows. Her hair is brown, and her skin, under a wonderful suntan, is darker than her sister's.

Think in Same Channels

The girls tend to think as a team, rather than as individuals. They use the pronoun "we" constantly.

"We love," for instance:

To dance; go to the theater: Bing Crosby, Peter Lawford, and Fred Corcoran, their manager, "the golfing gal's best friend."

The Bauer girls, along with Patty Berg and other top-flight golfers, are in Washington for the two-day National Celebrities Golf Tournament, opening today at the Army and Navy Country Club.

Miss Billingsley Becomes Bride Of Mr. Douglas

Miss Eula Billingsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Adam Billingsley of Fredericksburg, Va., yesterday became the bride of Oscar FitzAlen Douglas, 3rd, son of Mrs. Oscar FitzAlan Douglas, jr., of New York City and the late Mr. Douglas. The wedding took place at Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church with the Rev. John Rustin officiating.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas will make their home in Washington.

Grateful Italy Gives 8 Handclasps, One Kiss

The one kiss at the Italian Embassy yesterday went to Mrs. John Davis Lodge, wife of the Representative. Eight men who received awards at the same time from the Italian Ambassador, Alberto Tarchiani, were presented decorations with handshakes. The Star of Solidarity was the award to each in appreciation for services to Italy.

Dr. John Steelman, assistant to the President, was decorated, as was Robert Woods Bliss, former Minister to Sweden. Others similarly honored were Brig. Gen. Louis Renfrew, Col. Jacob Brause, Paul Griffith, Assistant Secretary of Defense; Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, Charles Ross, presidential press secretary, and the military aide to the President, Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, who was out of town. The latter's decoration went straight to the State Department, where all decorations bestowed on Government officials rest until approved by Congress.

Dancer Assists Italian Welfare

Beautiful, blond Mrs. Lodge is Italian born, the former Francesca Braggiotti and sister of the famed pianist, Mario Braggiotti. Her talented dancing has contributed interest to many benefits for Italian welfare, and her efforts have been untiring in working for Italian relief since the war.

Dr. Steelman pointed with pride to his citation engraved on a scroll which he said would be framed the next day. During the reconversion period, Dr. Steelman did work on the steel industry in Italy.

Cocktail Party Precedes Ceremony

Signora Tarchiani received her guests at the reception and cocktail party held before the ceremony in the open cortille of the embassy. "This is Italian weather," said the Ambassador, looking up with satisfaction at a perfect sky. And it was a rare day, ideal weather for a garden party.

In the dining room, coffee and ice cream was served from a deep crystal bowl, with small cakes and candies. A bar was set up outside in the courtyard.

Signora Ortona, wife of the Italian Counseler, was in the gathering, said she is leaving June 15 for Italy with her children, and will not be back until September. Col. Anthony Biddle was a guest, also Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Steelman, Frederico Consolo of the Bank and Fund, and Signor and Signora Paresce of the embassy. Well over a hundred persons were on hand for the ceremony.

Austin Sees Peril If America Forsakes Its Global Friends

Boston, June 2 (AP).—Warren R. Austin, chief American delegate to the United Nations, said tonight the United States might lose its national life if it forsakes its friends around the globe.

Austin said in a speech to the General Federation of Women's Clubs that the free world would grow in strength if the peoples will persist in their cooperative effort, such as the North Atlantic Pact, the United Nations and other international agreements.

He said it is a dangerous illusion to look for a sudden solution. But, he added, the nations have arrived at a point where the future is manageable.

"Western Europe has been stabilized and is rapidly expanding beyond the levels of the prewar," he said. "It is clear that the (Soviet)—will to dominate is modified by the will to survive and can be restrained by united security measures."

"In the United Nations," he said, "we have instruments for waging the peaceful struggle for world liberation, and the daily opportunity to find practical bases for agreement to reduce and finally to terminate the threat to the free world.

"By maintaining unity in our own country, building unity among as many as will stand together in common support of their freedom, we can keep the peace and eventually unite all peoples. The United Nations is the only place in the world where the danger of miscalculation can be avoided by clear definition of common intentions."

Neighbors Who Are in the Vicinity of Congressional Club,

I am building my own home on a beautiful hill right opposite the entrance to the club. Now what we want is a shopping center so people can supply their house in every way including their automobile. A Giant Store would be the best solution of this problem. I have 5 acres just north of where the Bradley and River roads merge together. If you will work with us you can have everything you want in that neighborhood handy. The zoning law was made for the comfort and convenience of people who live in the neighborhood. Please write my home WO. 0933 and we will talk it over. Fulton R. Gordon, owner. Brokers' attention.

Board of Education Plans Budget Talk

The District Board of Education will start work on its requests for the 1952 school budget with a meeting for citizens Monday at 8 p. m. at the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw.

Citizens' associations, parent-teacher groups and other organizations have been invited to send representatives to the meeting to discuss school needs they think should be met in the fiscal year begining July, 1951.

Faith Is Power

Prayer Keeps Him With Me in Stride

This is the last of a series of six chapters condensed from the book, "FAITH IS POWER—FOR YOU" by Dr. Daniel A. Poling. In this instalment, he tells how prayer is part of every thought.

By Daniel A. Poling

CHAPTER SIX

When and where do I pray? At stated times? On my knees? In association with Bible readings and meditation?

Yes, to each of these questions and to others you may think of asking. But there are no limits placed, and after all the questions are asked, there is still much beyond. For, you see, prayer is my life's breath, as it is or may be yours, and we breathe all the time.

Of course, at times we breathe harder, and at other times we stop to take a long breath.

I find myself mixing prayer with thoughts. I discover that when walking, especially when tramping in the deep woods, down quiet lanes or across the high hills, or when I linger at a spring, the prayer of Communion keeps Him with me in full stride.

Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, my successor in the pulpit of the Marble Collegiate Church and my good friend, who is so inspiring and so wise a physician of souls, once described that impatient interval when we wait for the green light as a rare opportunity to send and receive the flash of a prayer.

For five good years my ministry was associated intimately with the life of the greatest extemporaneous speaker of his generation, David James Burrell.

On Sunday morning, while he still preached regularly, I would go from my study to his a few minutes before time to enter the pulpit, knock on his door, wait until I heard his resonant "Come in," and then enter and assist him with his robe. I had great delight in doing this.

I Had His Secret

One morning I forgot to wait—I just barged in. Dr. Burrell was kneeling by a chair set in a small recess, a chair in front of which he had dropped a red cushion, kneeling with his calendar before him and with his face in his hands. Then I had his secret, or part of it.

Always he came back to his "Sacred Desk" from his knees. Always he found for himself and for his waiting congregation Peace with Power in prayer.

He carried no manuscript and no notes into the pulpit, although his preparation was exhaustive. On Monday morning he wrote or dictated the manuscript.

But always, too, he wrote across a copy of the calendar for the day the rough outline of the sermon he was about to preach and carried that to the chair before which he knelt, burying his knees in the cushion, his face in his hands, and centering his faith in the One whom he loved, preached, and served.

In an Oregon valley stands a small white church that once was the largest building in my small world.

It was built by my father, much of it with his own hands, as he built other churches. But this white church bears now his name and is a memorial to him and to the woman who stood by his side, who very largely made him what he became.

I watched that church rise from its foundation to its variegated tower, stone on stone, board above board. I played under its walls and later worshiped at its altar.

I sat in our family pew and would be happy were that institution reestablished throughout twentieth-century America as it was known in earlier times.

There was good and even great preaching in that white church, and music that was not ever bad. But there were times when that modest sanctuary was filled by the voice of one who had sung for the world outside and of another younger voice destined to earn the wild applause of the great cities of the East.

Brought All Together

There were commencement exercises in that church and lectures, for it was the chapel of a "seminary that began with some promise but that presently moved away.

I remember all of these—the sermons, the music, the commencements, the lectures, and the community occasions that brought all together as perhaps only pioneer towns ever meet.

All of these were good, but best of all was the prayer my mother prayed. There are ancient ones who remember, too, after all these years, what a boy who was there couldn't forget. She would talk about the "unsearchable riches," this woman who was very poor of riches.

She would thank her God for "many things," and her children wondered what they were, but now they know. Her voice held the loveliest songs that ever came to that valley, but it was the loveliest when she prayed.

Always she prayed to the answer and always she found Peace with Power.

The preacher who built the white church, and who filled it then with the sermons of his faith, came back to it often for more than 60 years.

I saw him last in the pulpit when he was nearly 90. Then he smiled and listened to his sons. A few weeks later he had something to say and I think as I write that what he said then is the greatest sermon he ever preached. He was very tired and his voice had been very weak but now it was strong:

"I know that I am a dying man, but I am a victorious man. I have a message for the conference. Preach Christ, preach Jesus Christ and Him crucified."

He never spoke again. He didn't need to.

Three to Go

Hope Looks Better Second Time 'Round

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK, June 2 (AP).—Backed up by the experience of his Eastern TV debut, Bob Hope had a lot better luck with the second of his 90-minute periodic television series on NBC. He still has three to go. If he continues at his current pace, he'll be hard to beat.

As he did the first time, Hope had the help of such seasoned vaudeville talent as Bea Lillie and such TV newcomers as Frank Sinatra. A few video veterans were around, among them Arnold Stang, who carried on the heckling technique he introduced in theMilton Berle show, Berle was there, too, for the windup.

Back for a second visit to a recent Berle program was the comedy team of Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis. They still are under the wing of NBC, although their radio series, which didn't get anyway near the anticipated rating, has ended. Their technique fits in hilariously with Berle's antics.

BEARING out a May 15 forecast printed herein, the Groucho Marx deal that will switch him from CBS to NBC now has become a reality. Outside of the fact that it is an "exclusive eigh-year contract for both radio and television," and carries with it his present sponsor, none of the financial details was officially revealed. Groucho, who runs the You Bet Your Life comedy quiz, will move to NBC next fall after vacation. His present series, which the previous season was on ABC, ends on CBS late in June.

Marx's program, which began in 1947, has been his most successful experience in radio. An earlier prewar series didn't fare nearly as well.

FRIDAY night broadcasting from Madison Square Garden—radio and television—has come to a halt. When and if it is returned depends upon contract renewal, with TV as the rub.

The fight managers are insisting that before they sign again they want a greater share of the television take paid the Garden for the rights. They say this is necessary to compensate them for losses entailed by decreased attendance, which they blame on television. The figure asked is said to be 50 percent of the television fee, considerably more than under the old contract.

Networks concerned are ABC with a radio relay and NBC with a telecast. Both have the same sponsor (Gillette).

The contract dispute concerns only fights in the Garden, which are handled as a year's "package." Such outdoor headline events as that on June 28 Between Rocky Graziano and Jake LaMotta are on an individual basis.

"THE PAY-OFF," Wells Robinson's prize-winning play in the CBS Awards competition for original drama scripts by collegiate writers, will be presented on "Stage 13" over CBS-TV (WOIC) Wednesday at 9:30 p. m.

Robinson, a 26-year-old former G.I. undergraduate at the University of North Carolina, is majoring in radio and has produced successful broadcasts for the university's communications center.

"The Pay-Off," an exercise in the integration of plot and character, tells the story of two miserly spinster sisters whose avarice proves their undoing.

The script attracted the interest of Wyllis Cooper, producer of "Stage 13," widely known for his origination of such series as "Lights Out," "Volume I" and "Escape," when announcement was made of the prize award to Robinson.

"Stage 13," a new series launched in April, is devoted to dramas of fanciful adventure and mystery.

Have you ever wondered what happens afterward to people who get their pictures in the paper?

I can't guarantee that you'll have the same luck as Ginny Coughlan, but here's her story:

Ginny is 20 years old, a charming blonde, and a model by profession. Several months ago, this newspaper printed her picture for some obscure reason which now escapes me.

As a result of that picture, demands for Ginny's modeling services increased considerably, she appeared on a television program, was invited to become soloist with a dance band, Midshipman at Annapolis voted her the sweetheart of their dormitory and invited her down for a personally conducted tour of the Academy grounds, and the United States Air Force Band decided that Ginny was the girl with whom they'd "most like to make music."

Pleasantly surprised by the results, Ginny says she is now a confirmed believer in the power of the press—especially that of The Washington Post.

Dear Bill:

What's the speed limit on Massachusetts ave. nw. between 34th st. and the bottom of the hill?

I ask because I have to cross the street at this point to get to work, and have to dodge traffic which appears to be moving too fast.

The other day I saw a motorcycle policeman zipping down the hill, passing even the speeders. He wasn't trying to catch anybody. He was just in a hurry.

Edward S. Wranek
615 A st. se.

Dear Ed:

The speed limit is 30 down to the bridge at the bottom of the hill; from there on in, it's 25.

Your mention of the motorcycle cop gets a sympathetic reaction from me.

I wish I had a dollar for every time I've seen a motorcycle man cruising along at an excessive rate of speed—not going any place in particular, mind you, or answering a call. Just plain speeding along his beat, then pulling into a side-street to lay in wait for some unlucky motorist who might happen by and be guilty of exactly the same thing the policeman just did.

Those men are supposed to be setting the rest of us a good example and it sizzles me to see that a few of them fail to practice what they preach.

On the other hand the great majority of the cycle cops obey the law scrupulously; and the men who drive our police cruisers are among the best.

Bill

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Public Asked to Judge Truth

By Drew Pearson

Some people seem to be laboring under the impression that I enjoy being called a liar. Thick-skinned as I am supposed to be, I do not.

Pearson

I particularly do not enjoy being called a liar by Senator Taft as he virtually did the other day after I reported that he entered into a deal with the Southern bloc to deliver six Republican votes to continue the filibuster. I do not enjoy it because I like Taft and consider him a healthy influence in government; second, because it gets me in wrong with my wife, Mrs. P. happens to think that Taft can do no wrong—a state of affairs which, unhappily, she does not always believe applies to her husband.

In this case I tried to argue with Mrs. P. that her idol from Ohio should at least exercise some originality. After all, I have been called a liar by such celebrated figures as President Roosevelt and the Senator from Ohio could certainly have found more descriptive language. One of the fundamental requirements of a politician is imagination, and in this case Senator Taft did not even show the imagination of Harry Truman.

In all seriousness, however, I should like to point out that it's the easiest thing in the world for a public official to hurl the charge of liar at a newspaperman; but it's something else again to make it stick.

By way of illustration, perhaps I may be forgiven if I call the roll of those who have called me a liar—or worse—and let the public decide who told the truth.

Early Russian Friction

Chronic Liar—President Roosevelt's famous epithet of "chronic liar" was given in the late summer of 1943 after I reported that Stalin was irate because Cordell Hull had failed to consult him regarding the preliminary terms for the Italian surrender.

In view of subsequent events, probably FDR and Secretary Hull might wonder why they ever bothered to deny a story that friction was developing with Russia. But at that time they were anxious to give every appearance of complete cooperation with Russia, and the story was denied first by Mr. Hull, then by President Roosevelt, who also threw in the "chronic liar" crack.

Six months later, March 1944, confirmation of the story began to appear when Stalin demanded one third of the Italian navy, and it became known that he had designs on the Italian colonies and was intent on breaking up the British-French control of North Africa and the Mediterranean. And with every passing month, the wartime friction between Russia and the United States has become more obvious.

I am not arguing that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull may have had excellent diplomatic or military reasons for their caustic statements. At this moment we are only concerned with the truth.

Vaughan and SOB

S. O. B.—President Truman gave a new twist to the conventional charge of "liar" when he dished out the label "S. O. B." after I had criticized Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan for accepting an Argentine medal at a time when dictator Peron was attempting to get a large loan from the United States Government.

Since then, Congress has refused to let Vaughan have his Argentine medal, Peron has got 125 million dollars from the Export-Import Bank, and a Senate investigating committee heard Vaughan accused of all sorts of irregularities, such as putting race-track construction ahead of veterans' housing; doing unusual favors in return for deep-freezes; demoting Army officers because they tangled with John Maragon; and trying to increase grain quotas for whisky distillers at a time when grain was crucially needed in Europe.

In the end, the Senate committee rendered an official report indicating, in official and eloquent language, that General Vaughan might be something faintly resembling an S. O. B. himself.

Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma also hurled the "liar" charge when I reported, May 6, 1946, that he had been speculating in cotton through his wife. Two years later an Agriculture Department report officially confirmed his speculation.

Representative Parnell Thomas—Denied kickbacks and called me a liar, but is now in jail.

John Maragon—Called me a liar for exposing his operations, but is now in jail.

Tanforan Race Track Executives—Called me a liar and threatened a libel suit when their violation of housing regulations (in connivance with General Vaughan and John Maragon) was exposed. They went to jail.

Patenotre Tax Fraud—Attorney Ellsworth Alvord called me a liar and wrote newspapers threatening a libel suit. Later, his clients pleaded guilty and paid a million-dollar fine.

Representative Andrew May—Called me a liar over the Erie Basin munitions fraud. He and the Garsson brothers went to jail.

Destroyers to England—When this column reported in 1940 that the United States would trade 50 destroyers to England for island bases it was categorically denied by the White House; then officially confirmed two weeks later.

Senator Lundeen—When Senator Lundeen of Minnesota was killed in a mysterious airplane crash in 1940, I revealed that he was en route to deliver a pro-Nazi speech written for him by George Sylvester Viereck, a paid agent for Hitler. Senators Wheeler and Bennett Clark immediately delivered scathing speeches on the Senate floor and hurled the liar charge. Later, Viereck was prosecuted for being a German agent, and during the course of the trial it developed that he had written Lundeen's speeches. He went to jail.

Louisiana Scandals—When bribery and corruption were charged by this column regarding Gov. Richard Leche, Democratic National Committeeman Seymour Weiss and various of the old Huey Long gang, the charge of liar echoed all over Louisiana. But, in the end, all the officials named went to jail.

These are some, though not all, of the people who have called me a liar.

Now I don't want to give the impression that I consider myself always right, because I'm not. Being human, I make mistakes. But on important issues I simply can't afford to make them too often.

Having got steamed up on the subject, I have exhausted my quota of space in today's paper without discussing my differences with Senator Taft; so I'll have to come back to that in a future column. After all, I've got to get that straightened out for the sake of harmony in the Pearson family.
